Peace reigns over the valley

Carson City is the capital of a beautiful state. Nevada's mountains and deserts bring colors alive as nothing else can.

The city itself is located in the midst of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Lake Tahoe is just on the other side of a mountain in all its splendor. The entire area surrounding Carson is either tree dotted or desert.

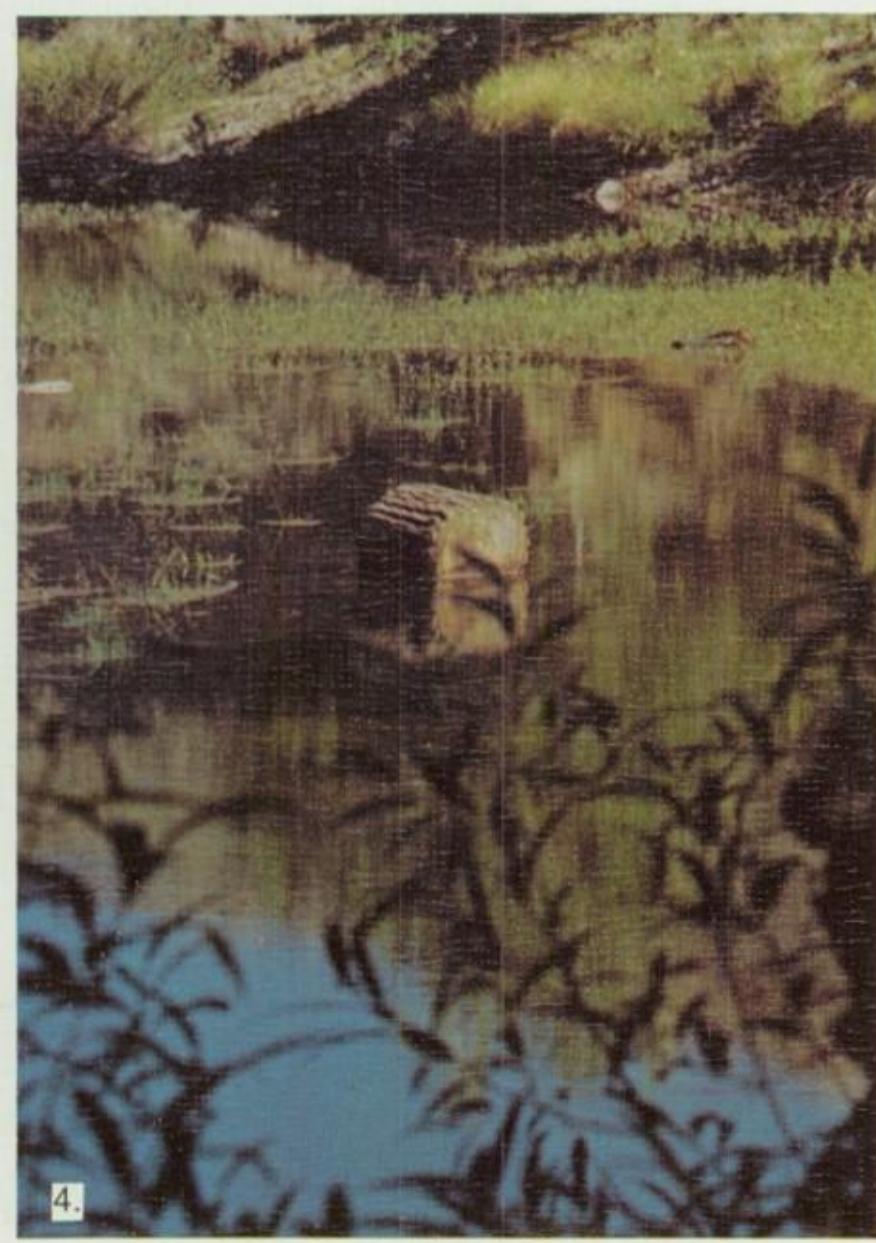

Not long ago in 1950 Carson City had the distinction of being the smallest capital in the United States with a population of 4,172. Then the beauty of Nevada was virtually untouched and unspoiled.

Progress takes over

Trees were once abundant in Carson, they surrounded almost every building. The main part of Carson was down Main Street. There were no shopping centers, apartments, or trailer parks bordering the city.

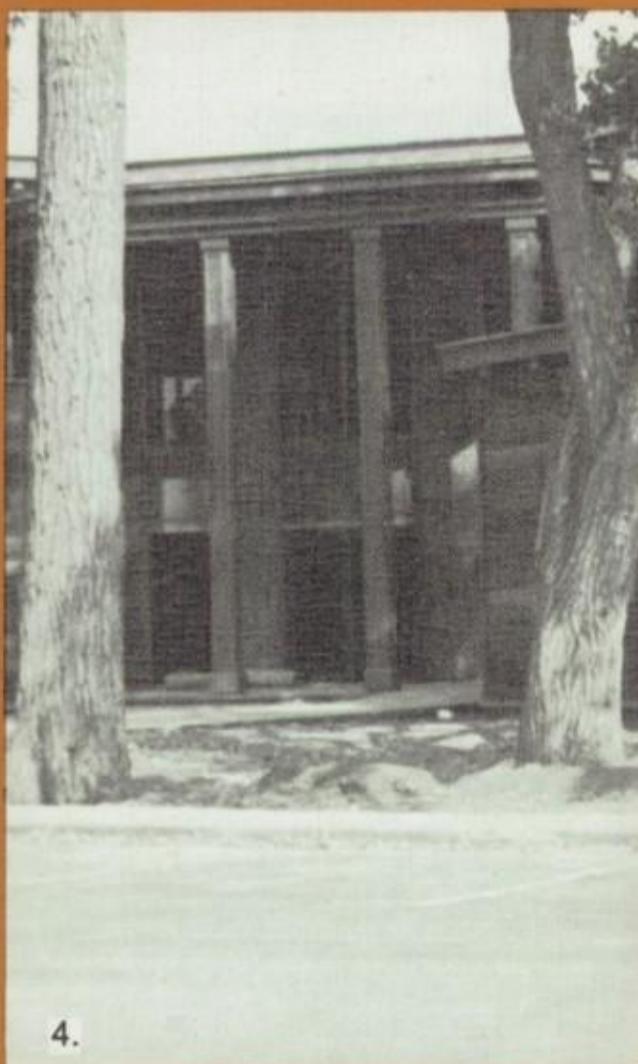

Now a tall tree can rarely be seen as you drive down Main Street. Five shopping centers enclose the city. Apartment buildings are sprouting up everywhere. The barren land does not stretch to the mountains as far as the eye can see; the land is now dotted with houses.

Transition: old to new

Carson City has undertaken a change. As most cities in the United States, it has grown and advanced. But Carson City grew very fast. The estimated population in 1960 was 8,063. Ten years later in 1970 it was 15,468.

Earthquakes and smog in California chased people to Nevada. Climate extremes brought the north and south to rest in warm and dry Carson City. These migrations brought Carson up to its present population, 25,000.

Approaching metropolis

Each day more people arrive in Carson City. New houses spring up. Trailer parks are formed. Abruptly Carson City's beauty and serenity is invaded. Construction is in the making everywhere. Trees are cut down, sagebrush cleared away.

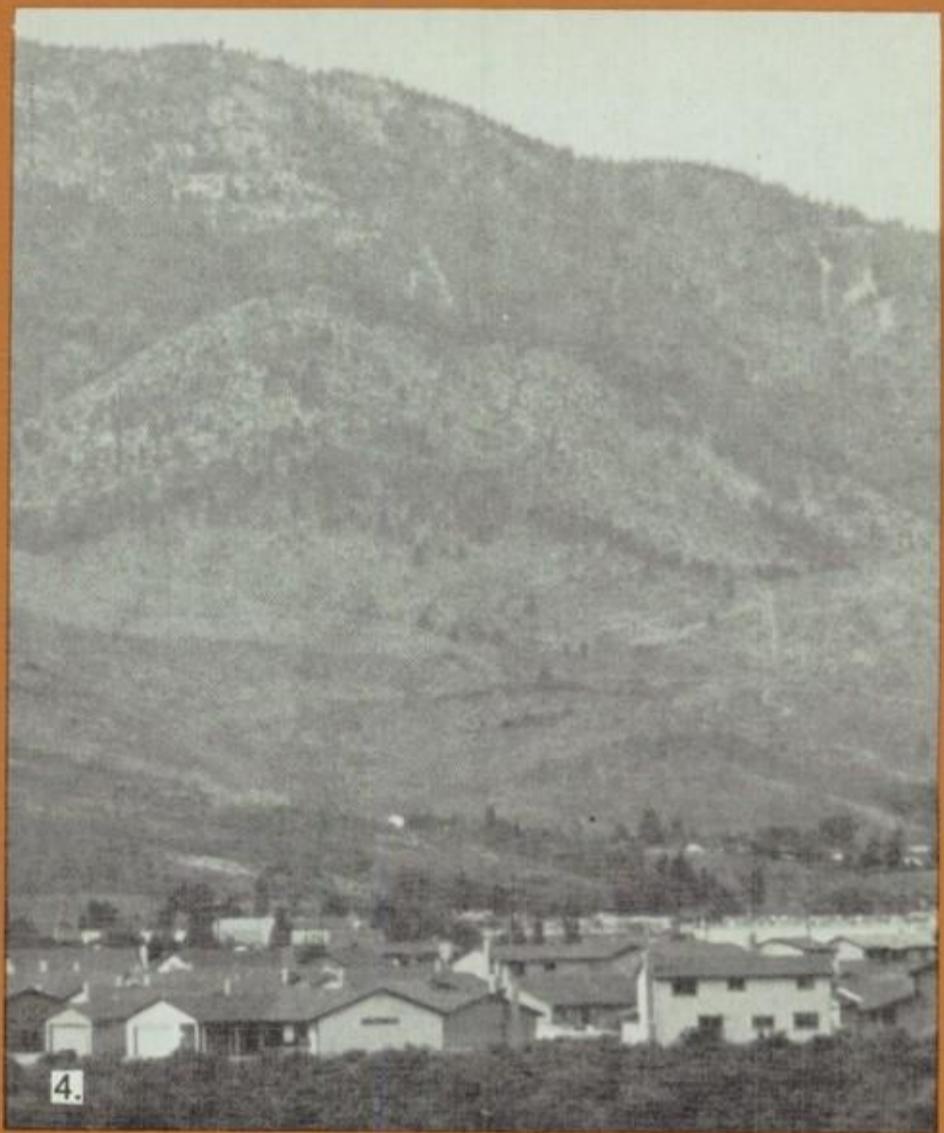

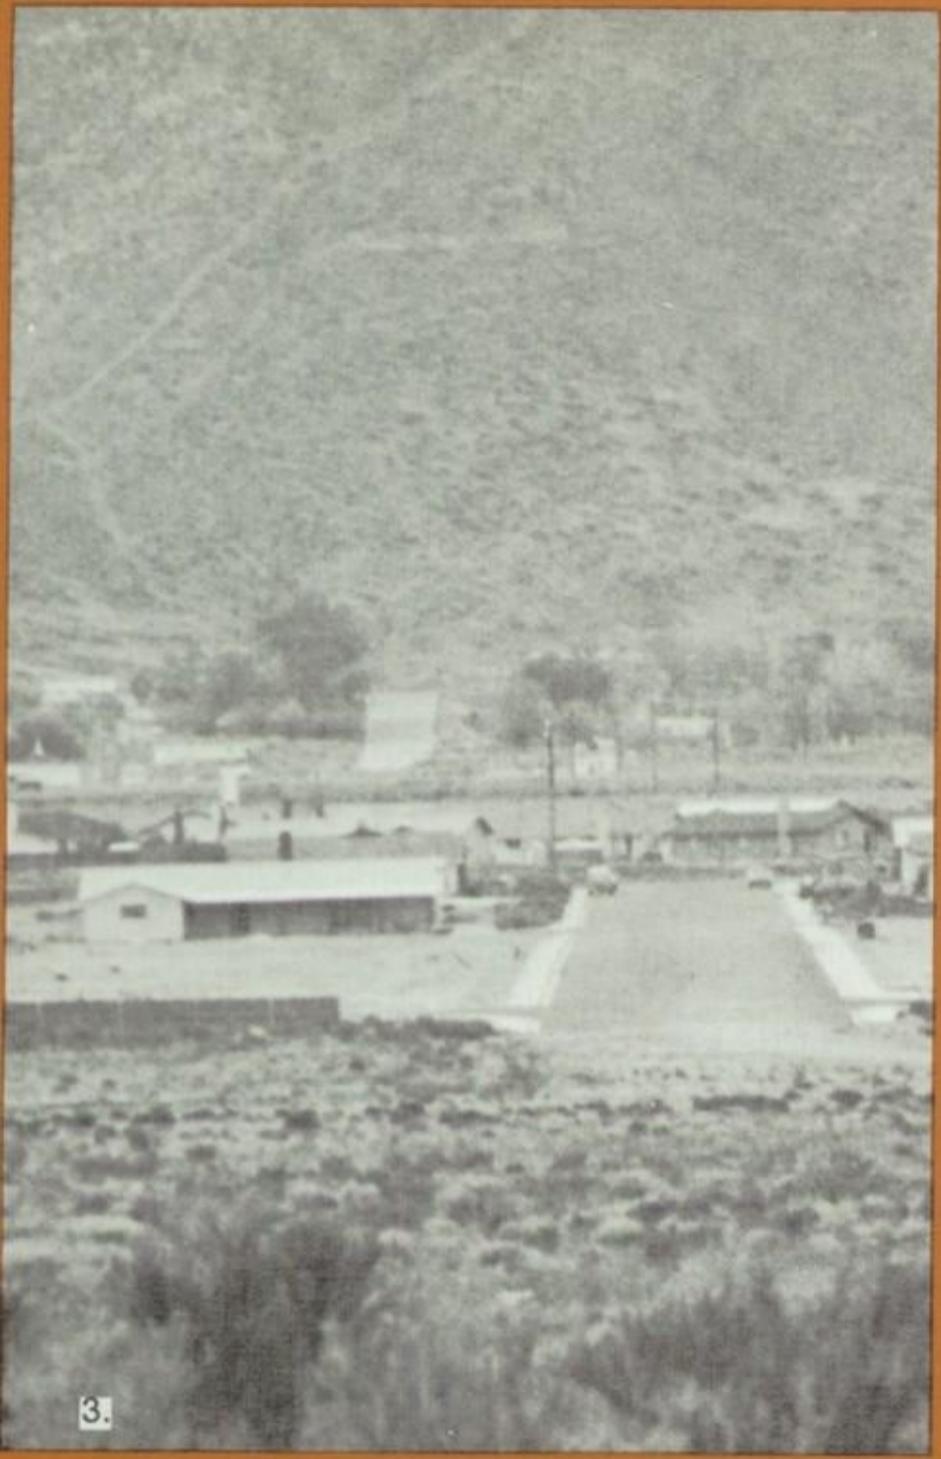

Carson is no longer the smallest U.S. capital. People are everywhere. Houses, apartments, shopping centers, the peace is shattered.

Early hours create chaos

This year, school opened for sophomores, juniors and seniors at 7:15 a.m. As the intercom directed, students reported to the cafeteria to pick up their schedules, then on to the gym to their first assembly of the year and finally to classes. Freshmen were more fortunate in reporting back at 12:05 p.m. instead.

Students enjoyed finding out their schedules, seeing what friends had classes with them, and discovering who their teachers were. Most were pleased with the results, but 200 requested various changes.

As the day went on, students reacquainted themselves with the school.

CHS officers work double time

Thanks to this year's double session, the CHS Student Body Officers were forced to work double time. Student Council meetings were held at 4:35 pm, in order for both freshmen and club representatives to be able to attend.

Also, the Council tried to maintain our school's moral when sophomores, juniors and seniors didn't appreciate first period starting at 7:20 am. Officers ran as many as three assemblies in one day to accommodate all the students.

1. The Student Store kept Neil Wyatt, treasurer, busy. 2. Student Body Officers: Pam Belford, historian; Kirk Lippold, president; Lorree Ratto, vice-president; Neil Wyatt, treasurer; Susan Mathews, secretary. 3. Tammy Cameron, CARNETA Editor, works hard with a staff member to meet deadlines.

Small gym splits assemblies

During pep assemblies students crammed into the half-size gym to watch skits and contests put on by students and the spirit leaders at CHS.

Since the classes were divided for separate assemblies the pep was harder to get going. But with the determined efforts of the student body officers, cheerleaders and songleaders, rowdiness abounded.

Characters lurk in hallways

The week of Oct. 4-8 continued a well carried out tradition at CHS. It started a week of funny clothes and suspicious characters. It was Football Homecoming Week.

Kicking off Spirit Week was 40's Day, when everyone dressed in fashion reminiscent of three decades ago. Tuesday saw hundreds of slogan buttons. Legs and arms were miniature bulletin boards for everything from Nevada Day pins to Future Stewardess wings. Wednesday, one of the more popular days, was a day of mystery and fun. Students wore everything from funny noses and low brim hats to trench coats and dark glasses to participate in Disguise Day. "Sunday best" was the dress for Thursday. On Friday CHS reverted to childhood fantasies with Disney Day. Winnie-the-Pooh and Tigger Too, along with Pinocchio and other Disney characters, rounded out the week of fun.

Queen Tamera reigns over homecoming

Highlights of the October 8 homecoming evening included the crowning of Tamera Devine as Queen, the awarding of first place float honors to the Senior Class and the outstanding scoring of the Varsity.

At the beginning of the half-time ceremonies, Queen candidates were escorted to the center of the football field, and a hush drifted across the stadium. Within a few moments Kirk Lippold both announced and crowned Tamera as Queen. She was escorted by Bill Canfield.

Other candidates and their escorts were Elaine Saarem and Barry Klaich; Kirsten Kremers and Chet Wood; Kelly Cross and Mike Shoaf; and Susie Gray and Danny Ellis.

The next long-awaited announcement was the winner of the float competition. Seniors created their winning float on the Disneyland theme of Pirates of the Caribbean.

Next the Senator Varsity returned to the field to score even more touchdowns. At the end of the game, Carson had run up the score to 34-6 over Reeds' Raiders.

CHS entries earn parade titles

Nevada celebrated its 112th anniversary a day early this year, since Oct. 31 fell on a Sunday.

The day was warm and sunny, perfect for the longest parade Nevadans had yet seen. It began at 10 am and finished at about 1 pm when the 306th entry passed by.

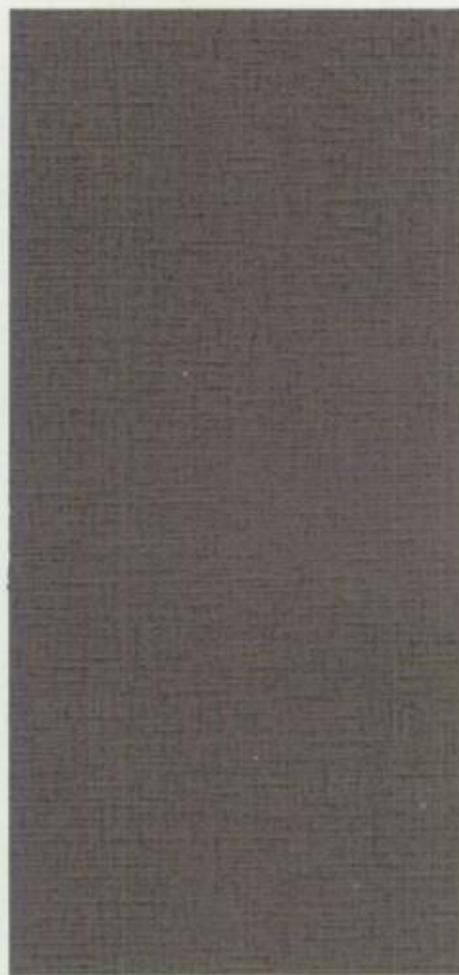

As usual many CHS students participated. Carson's marching band made a fine showing early in the parade. Later Carson High's NJROTC unit marched to win second place under military entry division and Brenda Heinz and Kelly Troop earned third place in the Mounted Pair Matched category.

Some individual students placed also. Denise Terrell took second for Best Dressed Cowgirl, while her sister Karen earned a third for the Best Breed Horse.

High school open for inspection

On November 17 parents were given the opportunity to view the school and meet teachers.

By seven the evening air cooled and people began arriving in heavy coats. The doors were open till nine when a bell sounded as a signal for teachers and parents to go home.

Not much change took place over the past year in the school. No new rooms had been added although a few teachers switched classrooms. As in previous years the complicated layout of the high school confused some parents, but during the course of the evening they eventually found their way around.

Refreshments available to all were served in the reading lab located in the language department.

Flood waters evict counselor

September 30 was a night to remember. At around ten that evening a main water line was broken and approximately 120,000 gallons of water flooded the bottom floor of building A.

Karen McDowell, counselor, suffered the most from the deluge. The water pressure literally collapsed her office and ruined almost all of her possessions.

The custodians worked far into the night vacuuming up the water and trying to make school possible for the following day.

Although they did a good job with such little time, the carpets still sloshed mysteriously throughout the next day. They were darkened by the drenching and emitted cold draft so that most students tried to keep their feet up and wore coats.

A lot of the items teachers kept near the floor were damp when they arrived. Many books now have crinkled pages and a lot of old pictures kept in the library were ruined. Trouble with the outlets arose and for a couple of days were unusable.

Rock music thunders through Carson High

Drama students produced their interpretation of a rock album by a British group called "Queen—A Night at the Opera." They were under the direction of Debra Turvold.

Many of the English students who watched the performances, given to all morning session periods and to second and third afternoon session periods, were required by their teachers to write their impressions and explanations of the rock story.

Hours of behind-the-scenes work went into the 40-minute production. Wayne Burgarello's art students designed and painted the sets. Those who led in this assignment were Donna Beck, Keith Boiselle, Suzi Gunkel, Donna Hill, Dave St. Germaine and Collette Waddel.

Kay Knapp, Deanne Dose, Debbie Myer and John Shaw applied the unusual make-up. Starla Ericson and Tanya Moriarity created the costumes; John Gillie controlled the lighting.

(These photographs were taken at dress rehearsal, before the cast had their faces made-up.)

Tinsel, cranberries, holly sparkle up classrooms

Hallways echoed laughter through the week of December 13-17 before Christmas vacation. Spirits were high as rooms were decorated with trees and tinsel.

As is traditional, special assemblies were given. This year the sophomores and seniors performed in the morning and the freshmen skit was in the afternoon.

The seniors were 78 strong in their skit, "The Twelve Days of Christmas." Cal Reed, English teacher, aided the class by acting the part of a partridge in a pear tree.

The sophomores made up a skit, "The Backward Elves." Boys played their parts in tutus and furry slippers.

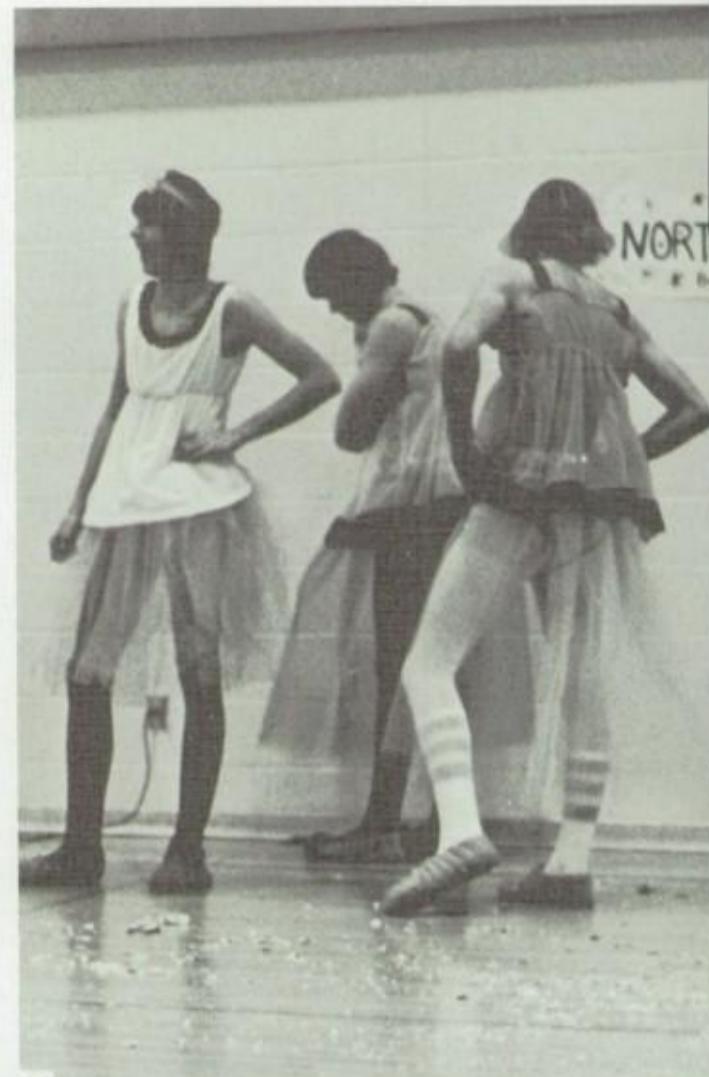

The freshmen skit, "The Night Before Christmas", proved interesting when all players contradicted the famous poem.

Snow covers CHS

After numerous scare reports of serious drought conditions in the coming summer, people were thrilled to see the first snow in early January. The white flakes melted soon, however, and the weather turned excessively warm. Temperatures in the sixties were usual until the evening of February 22 when a cold front moved across the Sierras and blanketed the surrounding areas with snow.

It was still snowing the next morning as students started toward school. The storms continued for several days and gave Nevada the much needed moisture for the hot summer months.

Homecoming: a week of surprises

Spirit week for the basketball homecoming started out with Hats and Shades Day. Students wore all different kinds of hats and glasses in a variety of colors and sizes. Wednesday, you might have thought that the school was being invaded. Squirrels, mice, and alligators came to school in the disguise of humans. The Carson High students brought their favorite stuffed animal which left a visitor thinking he was touring through the city zoo.

Fifties Day took a twenty year step into the past Thursday, when kids dressed up in midcalf length skirts, penny loafers, leather jackets, and old letter sweaters. Spirit week ended with Blue and White Day where kids came wearing our school colors.

Homecoming filled with festivities

Homecoming night began with assemblies put on by the Junior class where the girls dressed up in house coats, wig heads, and burlap sacks and danced to a favorite tune. Also included were the naming of the pet rocks, boy meets girl in a whip cream contest and the introduction of homecoming candidates.

Even though Carson lost to Wooster 70-38, Kirsten Kremers highlighted the evening when she was announced as homecoming queen. Her court consisted of, Elaine Saarem, Candy Hooper, Susie Gray, and Terri Kingsley, escorted by members of the C Club.

The climax of the evening, was the homecoming dance that was held at the Community Center with the music provided by the group, Push.

Twelve girls compete for crown

Talents ranging from singing and dancing to dramatics and culinary arts kept the audience captivated during the 1977 Miss Carson City pageant.

There were twelve girls participating in the pageant, eight of whom came from Carson High School. Linda Sutherland, Candy Hooper, Sue Sloane, Ernesta Rucker, Laurie Strunk, Liz Larkin, Denise Terrell and Valerie Schacher were from CHS. The other four girls were Lisa Adamson, Barbie Winchester, Lori Stromberg and Trish Kelly.

Liz Larkin won the talent award for her ballet performance. She was also first runner up. Valerie Schacher was second runner up and Trish Kelly was crowned Miss Carson City for 1977.

Practice for the pageant started January 4 and was held in the old Civic Auditorium. Thus began a month of hard, long work in learning how to walk the right way, confidence in facing a crowd, how to talk to judges and above all how to smile.

So when February 9 finally came, hopes were high and nerves a little tight. But when the final moment came and the winners were announced no one walked away a loser.

"Barefoot" highlights acting year

Drama classes produced Neil Simon's play "Barefoot in the Park" on March 17, 18, 19, 25 and 26 in the CHS Little Theatre.

The story revolved around a newly married couple struggling to make a go of it. Mr. and Mrs. Bratter, the newlyweds, arrived in their new but unfurnished apartment. The couple was joined first by Mrs. Banks, Corie's slightly scattered mother, and second by the eccentric neighbor, a Frenchman, Mr. Velasco.

The apartment was furnished when Mr. Velasco was invited to a party. Mrs. Banks heard that the Frenchman was to be her blind date for the evening.

After a while, the group went out on the town and had a great time until the young couple had a huge fight.

In the last scene of the play, the telephone man arrived when Corie and Paul were feuding and he felt uncomfortable.

Mrs. Banks entered in the apartment in a man's bathrobe and slippers.

Paul just came in with his suitcase and a bottle. Mrs. Banks tried to explain the situation to her son-in-law, when Mr. Velasco entered. He did the explaining. Paul returned drunk and ordered Corie out of the apartment. They have a few words and came to a definite conclusion.

Backup work flows smoothly

The practice of the spring play began on December 15. The cast practiced two hours every evening Monday thru Friday for three months.

The sets were designed by Neil Wyatt and painted by the art classes. Tanya Moriarity, Starna Ericson and Paige Nebeker did the make-up for the production. Graduate Liz Brazzanovich helped out by taking care of the lights. Debbie Turvold directed the play.

Class took field trips

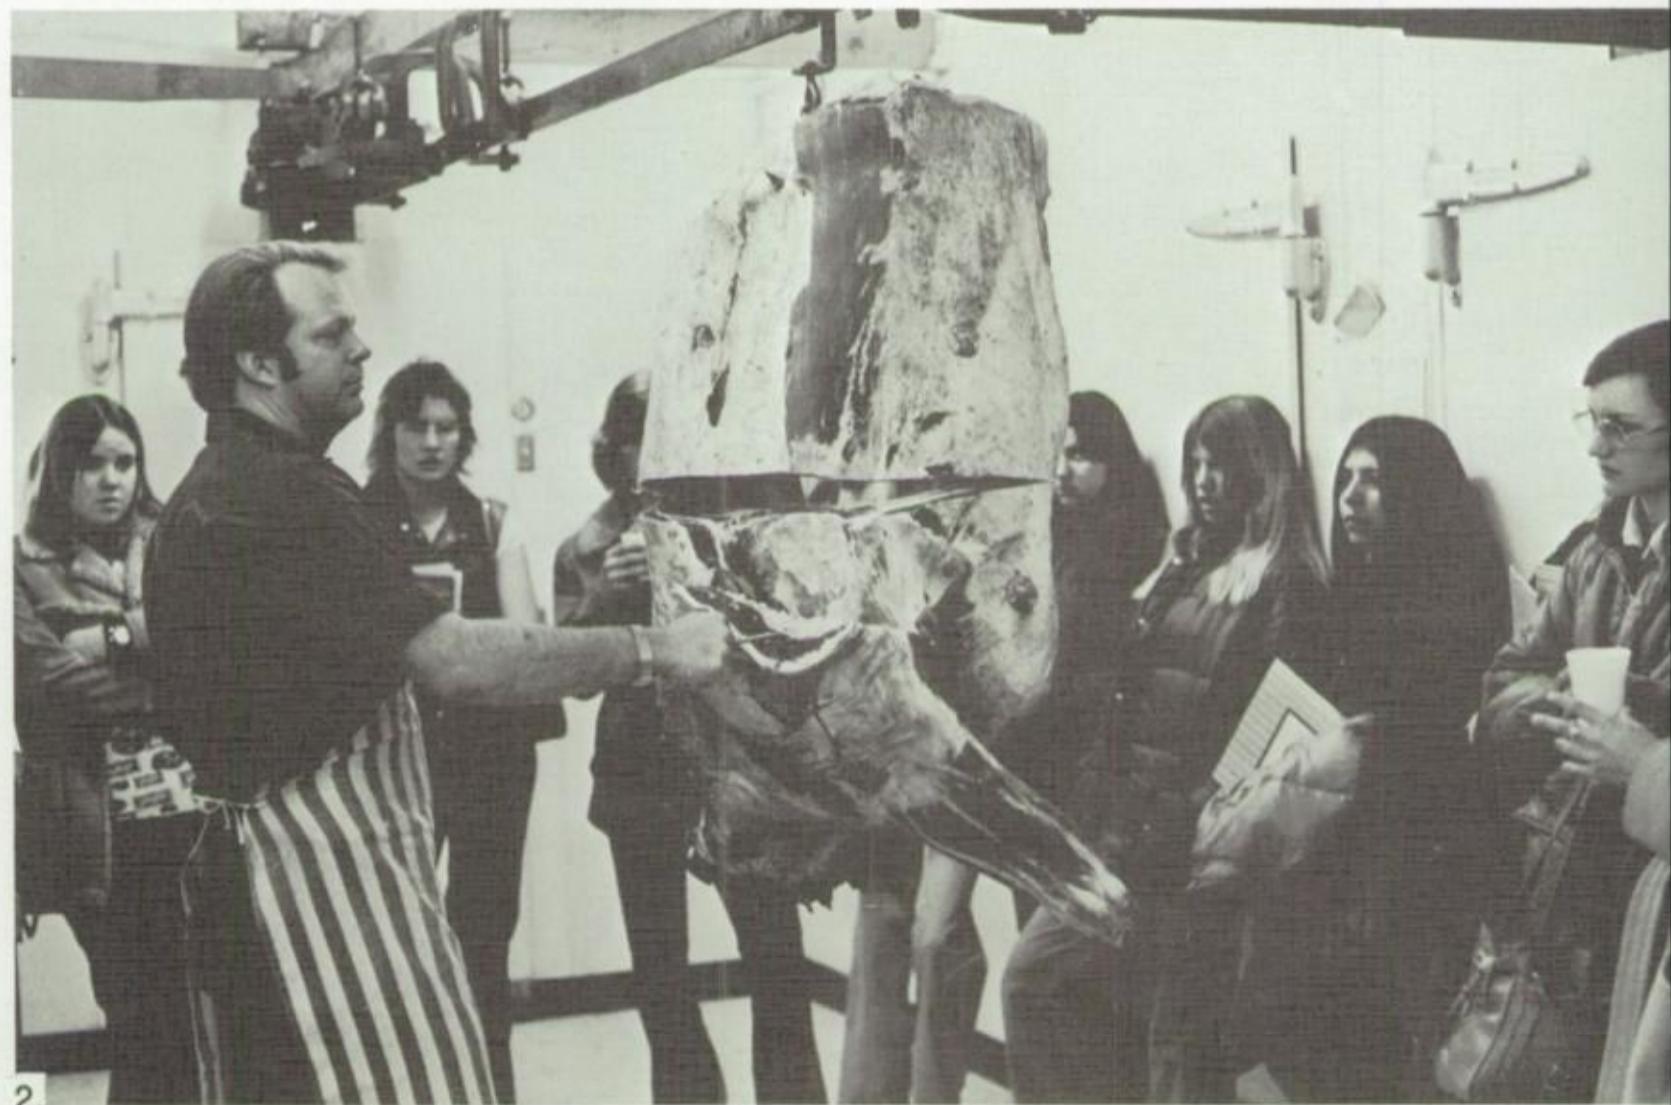

During this past year the commercial foods' class took two field trips, where they served food which they had prepared in their classes and on the weekend.

The field trip to the Job Corp involved work outside of class. They made and served food to the Cadet Academy.

The next field trip was taken to Butler Meats where they learned how to shop for the best meats.

Trustees bring new ideas

Many responsibilities and decisions faced the new school board, including selection of new superintendent and the introduction of innovative ideas.

John Hawkins, school superintendent, retired this year, after working for the district for nineteen years.

This election year three new members were added to the school board, Bob Thomas, Del Landing and Frank Matthews. After the boards' installation, their first action was to approve the schematic design of CHS's P.E. gym. With the new officers came fresh new ideas such as a system of testing before any student advances to a higher grade.

Bob Thomas hopes to assist in the formation of a career vocational school sometime within the next four years. Frank Matthews will represent the board during sessions of the Nevada Legislature. He will try to get hearings with the members of the legislature, in an attempt to get a more equitable distribution of educational funds.

Creating a good environment for CHS

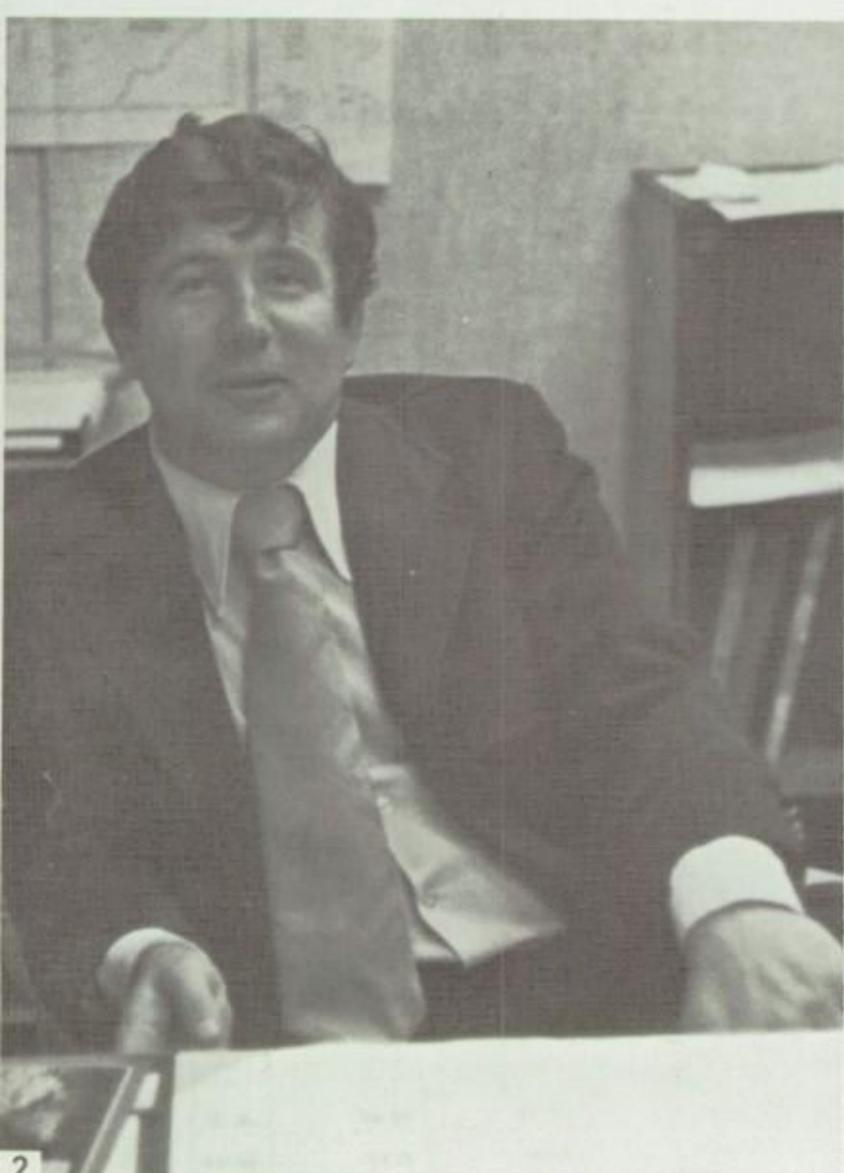

Administrators find themselves faced with a difficult job every school year.

Included in their plans for a smooth year is creating the best school environment that they can. They like to see every student in class everyday with the best possible teacher they can find.

A major project for the administrators was the planning of the new gymnasium at Carson High.

1. Dave McDonald, vice-principal, and Morse Burley, principal. 2. Norm Scoggin, vice-principal. 3. Barbara Little, dean.

Guidance adds new member

This year the counseling staff added a new member, Junior class counselor Debbie Horton. She found this work and being girls basketball coach new and exciting.

The new ten hour day was a factor that was easily dealt with. Secretaries were scheduled so that an efficient amount of personnel was available from 6:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Counselors found they had more time for conferences.

Warren Wish was senior counselor; Karen McDowell, sophomore; and Don Toral, freshman. Again this year Lu Walford directed the counselors.

Department gains honor

When Nola Thielke won a national Future Business Leaders of America honor, this reflected nicely upon the business department.

She competed with many other girls from all over the United States at an FBLA convention in Washington, D.C. She earned first place in the shorthand division. Phyllis Bendure taught her advanced shorthand and typing.

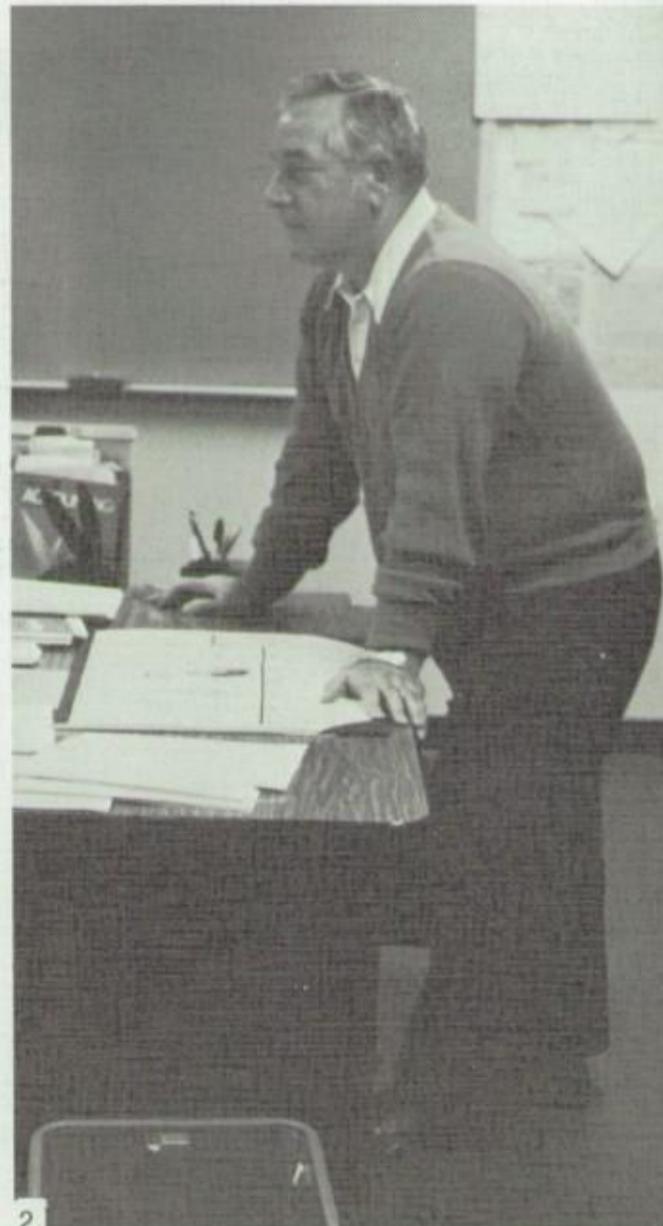

Although there were no new business teachers, this year, some changes did occur when the regular instructors received new teaching assignments.

Foods class views career opportunities

Commercial foods was one of the new classes within the vocational arts department. Taught by Gareth Greil, students went to Clear Creek Job Corps to prepare and serve meals for the state Police Cadets and for the state safety officers.

Along with Clear Creek, the class went to Butler Meat Co. to learn about butchering, storing and caring for quantity foods.

This class enabled its students to observe first hand career opportunities in the foods field.

Many activities keep small departments busy

Among the music, art, educational TV, foreign language and learning lab teachers, only Joe Dowell was new to the staff this year. He directs vocal music here while Ben Gollehon directs the instrumental groups.

Wayne Burgarello's students experimented with metal casting within the art department.

Scott Scowcroft and Al Hodges teamed up to offer the-best-in-the-state programming for educational television. They burned a lot of midnight oil taping, editing, and viewing shows.

Within the foreign language classes, the teachers tried to put most students on individualized study. This allowed students to work at their own pace, determine how much they wanted to learn and know how they could earn a particular grade.

During Christmas vacation Larry Deighton accompanied a group of students on a tour of London. Everyone paid his own way.

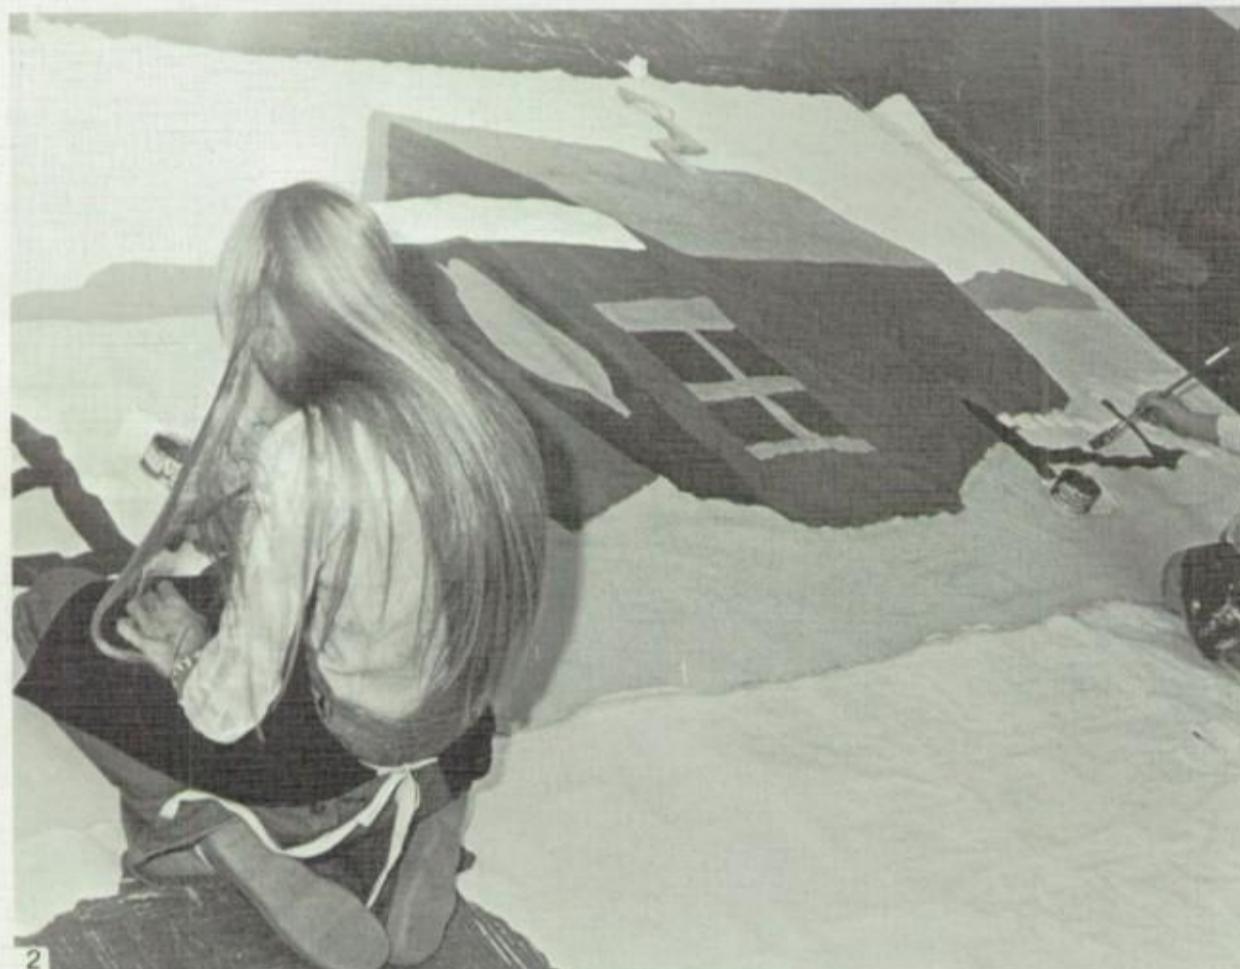

There were no changes within the learning lab operation.

Candidates speak to students

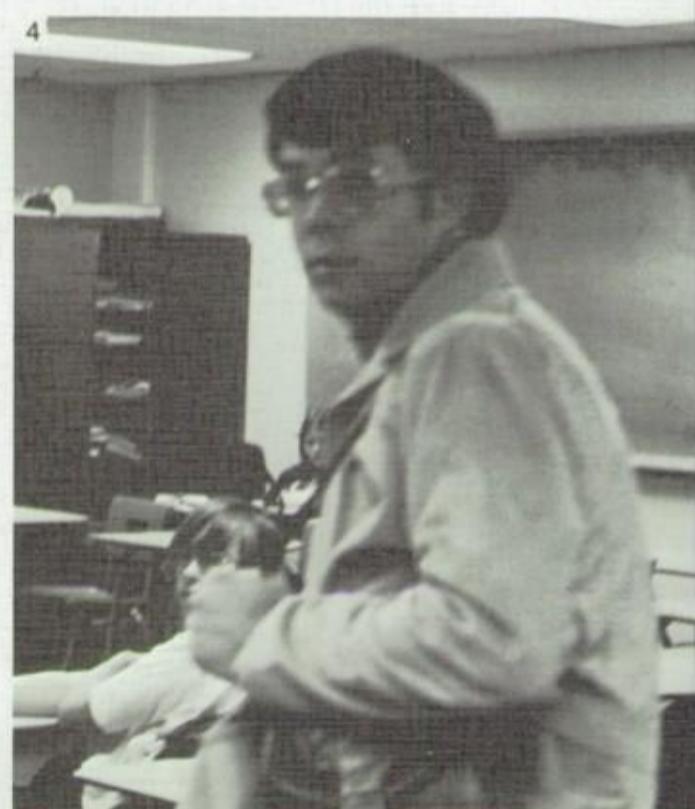

Since 1976 was an election year, local and state candidates came into the social studies department to speak to the students about their views of the state and city's concern.

Chalmer Dillard who teaches U.S. history and anthropology was head JV basketball coach this year.

An important event on the agenda for the civics classes was their visit to the legislature to observe political process.

Betsy Varga taught the sophomore girls along with teaching her home economic classes.

CHS staff works efficiently

Working behind the scenes for CHS, safety is the first concern of the bus drivers and custodians. The work they do, has to deal with the students' safety.

Bus drivers have the responsibility to get students to and from school safely and on time.

Custodians work to keep this school in the best condition possible. The biggest task that had to be faced, was cleaning up a 100,000 gallons of water that flooded the bottom floor of A Building. They worked through the night until just before first hour started.

Class of '77 looks back

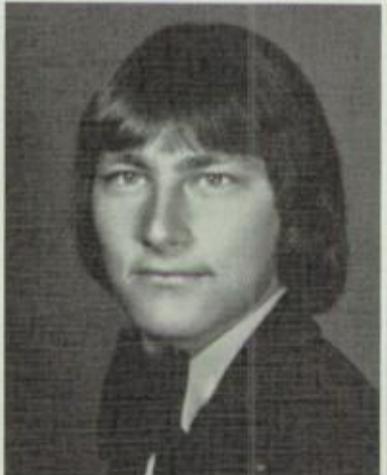

The best dressed, sexiest and crabbiest seniors, along with 50 other girls, were abducted at 3 am, May 16 for the annual Sophomore-Senior breakfast. Along with complaints of the early hour, they discussed other senior activities including their first place float for the homecoming parade, the fun at the prom held at the Governor's Mansion, and the up-coming senior trip.

Class of '78 organizes 1977 prom

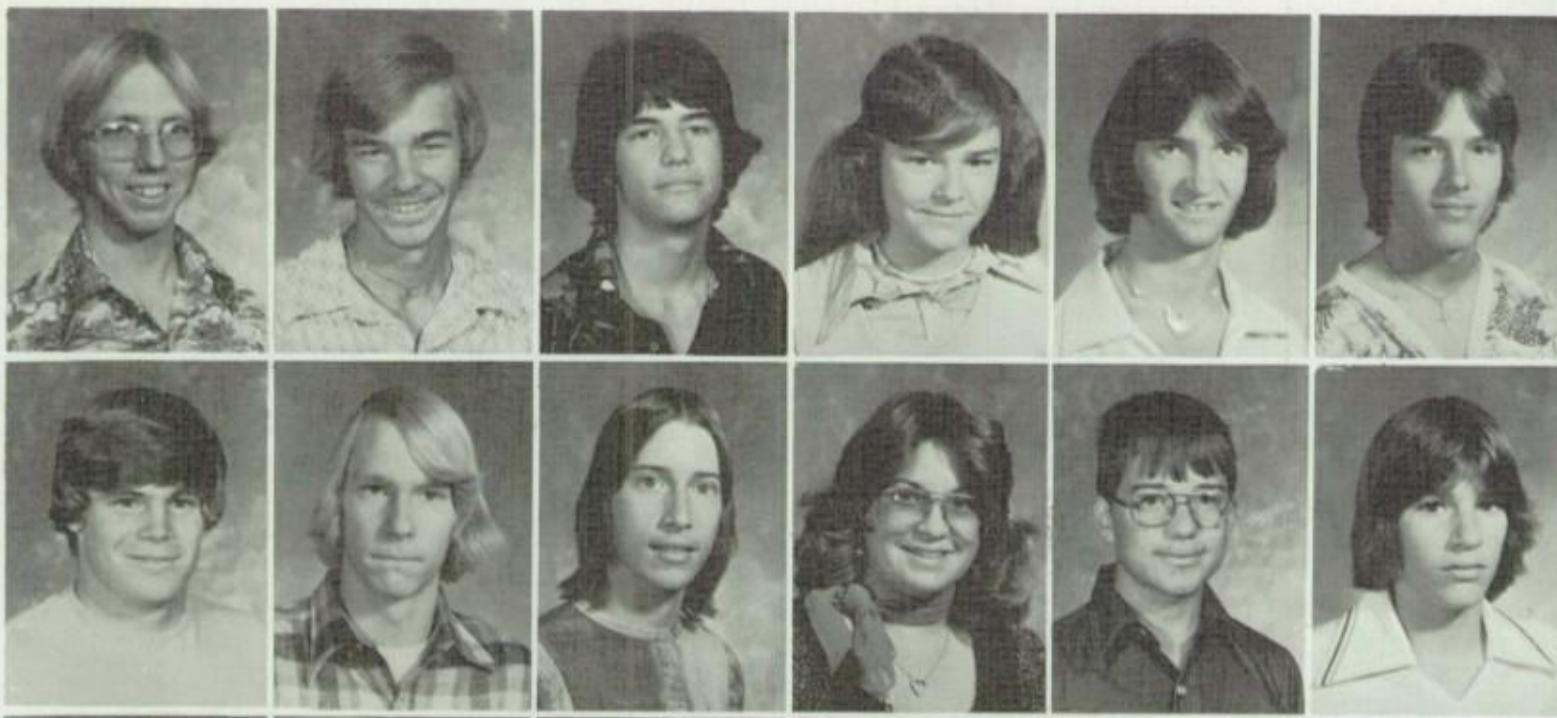

The Junior class had a very active year raising money for the prom and selecting a committee for the junior-senior dance. To make money they sold candy, basketball buttons and Easter corsages.

Early in the year, after Micah Kennedy resigned, Keith Forbes became the president leaving the spot of vice-presidency open. Don Simons filled that position for the remainder of the year.

Other officers included Colleen Bullis as secretary; Maria Bianchi, treasurer and Alice Hardy and Tami Elges, student council representatives.

Class of '79 hosts seniors

Highlighting the sophomore year was the traditional Sophomore-Senior breakfast. Sixty-one senior girls in pajamas and curlers were surprised one early spring morning and whisked to the Nugget for breakfast. The sophomore class paid the bill of over $200.

To make money for this annual event, the sophomores sold donuts for several mornings in the student store.

This year's officers were David Lloyd, president; Tony Cordisco, vice-president; Bill Scripps, secretary; Julie Ciardella, treasurer; and Doug Gamble and Kelly Goodman, representatives.

Class of '80 stands alone

Even though secluded from the other classes, freshmen succeeded in making the most of this school year.

Making a homecoming float was one project that made their year special. They were also active in student council which met immediately after the afternoon session on Mondays.

Dawn Buckler was this year's president; Adrienne Rodela was vice-president; Tammy McGee, secretary; Teri Andrews, treasurer and the student representatives were Emily Mathews and Jan Surface.

Foreign students enjoy CHS

Representing the Youth For Understanding Exchange Program this year were Jochen Albrecht and Anna Laurell.

Coming from Hamburg, West Germany, Jochen stayed with the Carmazzi family which included Arthur and Marcos, both junior high students.

Anna came from Halmstad, Sweden, to live with Mr. and Mrs. John Gaskill and their children, Sue, a sophomore, Lisa, a freshman, and Boo, a fourth grader.

2. Anna Laurell and her family the John Gaskills.
3. Gerard Labe with his three host families.
4. Marta Nogueira and the first of her three families, the Douglas Neddenrieps.

Jochen and Anna arrived in Carson City on August 10 and will return to their countries on July 10.

Coming from Liege, Belium, Gerard Labe stayed with three families: the Frank Follmers, the Paul Dahls and the Vern Pfankus. He arrived in Los Angeles on August 11 and went to see Catalina Island, Sea World and San Diego Zoo with the Follmers.

Marta Nogueira arrived from Sao Paulo, Brazil, on January 30, 1977. She will also be staying with three families: the Douglas Neddenrieps, the Gene Guyers and the Fred Daniels. Her return date is January of 1978.

Publication staffs meet challenges

Upon returning from summer vacation, the CARNETA yearbook and SENATOR newsmagazine staffs faced a new challenge—double sessions.

This year's book sales were limited to only four days. Those who did not buy one went without.

Many of the people working on the yearbook were also helping on the newsmagazine.

Stories and articles concerning school construction, special lectures and conflicts in the community were included in this year's SENATOR.

The cub staff, those students taking beginning journalism, helped with the production.

Mary-Ellen Clark became the new advisor for the SENATOR.

Memories

When non-journalism students drop by A-25, the journalism lab room, they usually hear and see some unusual happenings. Some may have experienced some of the following:

"You're bleeding in the gutter." "But at least I don't have a donut hole."

"Who's going to the student store for food?" "Let's go to Kentucky Fried, instead."

"Slurp." "Boy, this chicken is sure good, better than a taco." "Yeh, and it's better for us." "The potatoes fell off my chicken." "Get your fingers off my lap!"

"I can't type, so who'll do my story?" "These people still need to get shot." "All I ever do is strip." "I ordered those pictures two months ago, where are they?"

"Try and keep it down, folks. Keep it down to a dull roar; I have a class now."

"That floor plug just sizzled again."

Creative students formulate magazine

Two creative writing classes under the direction of Judy Elges were responsible for the production and a major part of the contents of this year's creative magazine, the VERBATIM.

Planning for the publication began in early February. Co-editors Tina Cordisco and Jenean Clement were chosen soon after.

First on the agenda for the classes was the distribution of large envelopes for the collection of student creative material in the classrooms.

Money raising projects, including a St. Patrick's Day bake sale, were quickly lined out. The students were well on their way to a successful publication.

All the sorting, typing and pasting up of the material was done either in creative writing classtimes or after school.

Group takes active part in club life

Quill and Scroll has been an active group on CHS's club roster every year. This year was no exception.

The club's activities ranged from a baby shower to bake sales. The baby shower was held for resigning sponsor, Leslie Knott in mid-January.

A Valentine Day bake sale at the Carson Mall raised the club treasury in February. Another bake sale, this one on the school grounds, highlighted March's activities.

As in the previous year the members of the club kept the bulletin board in the Language Arts Department filled with pictures and current announcements.

Awards and an initiation dinner were sponsored at the end of the year as well as the sale of pens during the end-of-the-year yearbook distribution.

Officers this year were, Tammy Cameron, president; Teresa Juback, vice-president and Linda Sutherland, secretary/treasurer.

Club float earns first in parade

Indian Club is composed of a variety of tribes including Washoe and Paiute. The group met every Tuesday in A-13, Advisor Paula Preston's room.

The Indian Club float won a first place trophy in the Nevada Day Parade. Sherrada James, president of Indian Club, also rode in the parade as Miss Washoe Tribe of Nevada and California.

Activities during the year included Intertribal Day in March, bake sales and sales of beaded jewelry that they had made.

Their annual spring assembly included a number of dances like the Snake and Owl. The members invited other schools to entertain CHS students at this special assembly, also.

The officers besides Sherrada were Angie Thacker, vice-president; Vicky Iverson, secretary; and Aleena Sallee, treasurer.

Police encourage drag strips

Although not a school oriented club, the Moonlighters involved a large number of Carson High students.

The group was formed with safety in mind by Art Roza and Carson City's Sheriff's department. The Sheriff's department donated five acres by Carson Airport for the construction of drag strips and paved racing lanes.

A number of fringe benefits go along with membership in the newly-formed club. Free concert tickets at T-Car were available to the members as well as discounted parts and services at Goodyear Tire. Private businesses donated their services to building fences and the drag strips.

Culinary art displayed by class

The Commercial foods class provided food services not only for the school, but also for the city. They catered the Youth Safety program and held a year long lunch program for the faculty. They spent four weeks at Clear Creek and three weeks at Police Academy observing their foods services. The class also went to Fallon Naval Station, John Ascuaga's Nugget and the Marine training site at Pickled Meadows to observe different types of food services.

Active group sponsors foster child

After being known as the French, Spanish or Latin Club for many years the International Club has been active for three years under its current name.

This year they had several international breakfasts. They also hosted a luncheon on Teachers' Institute Day and the Victory Dance at the end of the year.

For the second year in a row the club has sent money to a foster child in the Phillipines. They pay for her schooling and clothes.

This year members met about two times a month before school on Fridays.

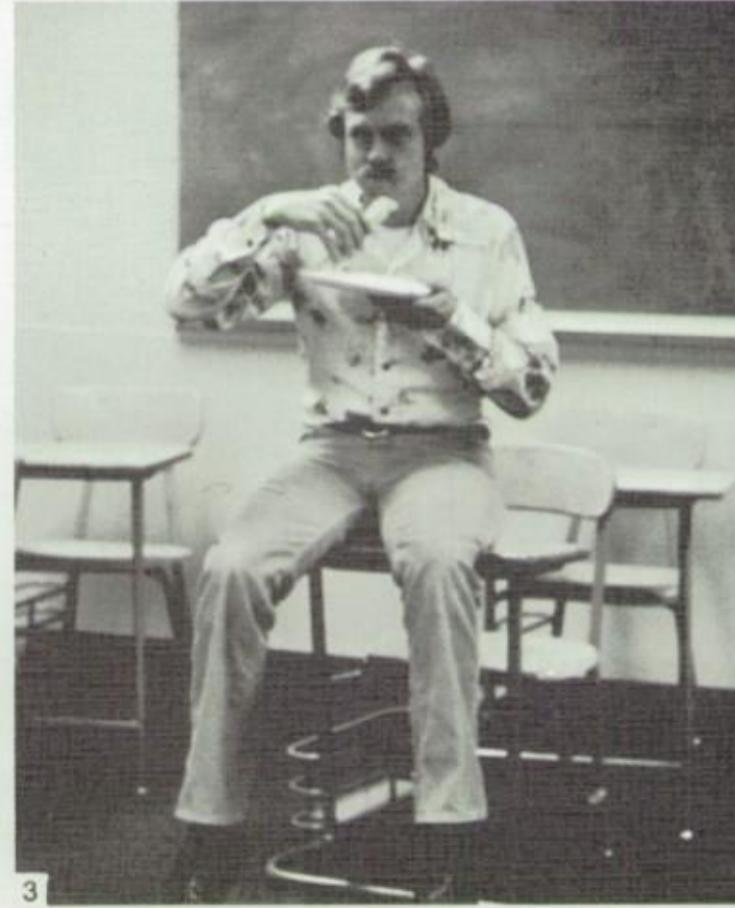

This year's officers were Annamarie Ramirez, president; Mike Moreno, vice-president; Becky Earnhart, secretary; Ginger Peevers, treasurer; and Annalise Davis, historian.

Joint effort aids elderly

Keywanettes and Key Club are two school groups that are affiliated with the Kiwanis Club of Carson City. The two groups combined towards the end of October to help with the Haunted House — from witches to goblins and to eerie sounds for all the citizens of Carson City to experience.

Activities ranging from the Haunted House to selling 2'x3' coloring books kept the Keywanettes busy throughout the year. The advisor of the club was Juli Dugger.

The many other activities Key Club participated in included Christmas carol singing at the Hospital, decorating the high school for football games, a fund-raising car wash and helping the senior citizens by having a combined Basketball-Volleyball Marathon along with the Keywanettes. Key Club also sold Mistletoe at Christmas time from Auburn. The club also held football games between themselves, one of which resulted in the broken arm of Advisor Mark Frady.

Selected members of the club attended the Governor's Ball held by the District Governor in Sacramento.

Winning team cheered by active girls

Three girls were selected from pep club by the wrestling coach, John Kileen to assist the team during their winning season.

Kellie Bowman, Christy Hudson and Lynn Parsons, kept scores for the team, took pictures for their scrapbook, but mostly they cheered the team on to their victories.

At the Elk's Invitational in December, the girls brought cookies and refreshments for the wrestlers.

The girls funded their own denim jumpsuits, embroidered with C.H.S. and their name on them.

Fund raising keeps girls active

Girl's Varsity Club raised money this year by selling corsages for football homecoming, candied apples for Halloween, doughnuts during the month of January and cookies for Saint Patrick's Day. They also held a garage sale.

The Club's projects included singing Christmas carols to retarded children and they helped with the Special Olympics.

Meetings were usually held twice a month on Monday's in a members' home.

Officers were: Becky Ford, president; Lisa Davis, vice-president; Pam Ertel, secretary; Vanessa Ford, treasurer; Michelle LaBadie and Karen Wood, student council representatives. The advisors were Pam Matorian, first semester and Brenda Blackham, second semester.

Lettermen escort candidates

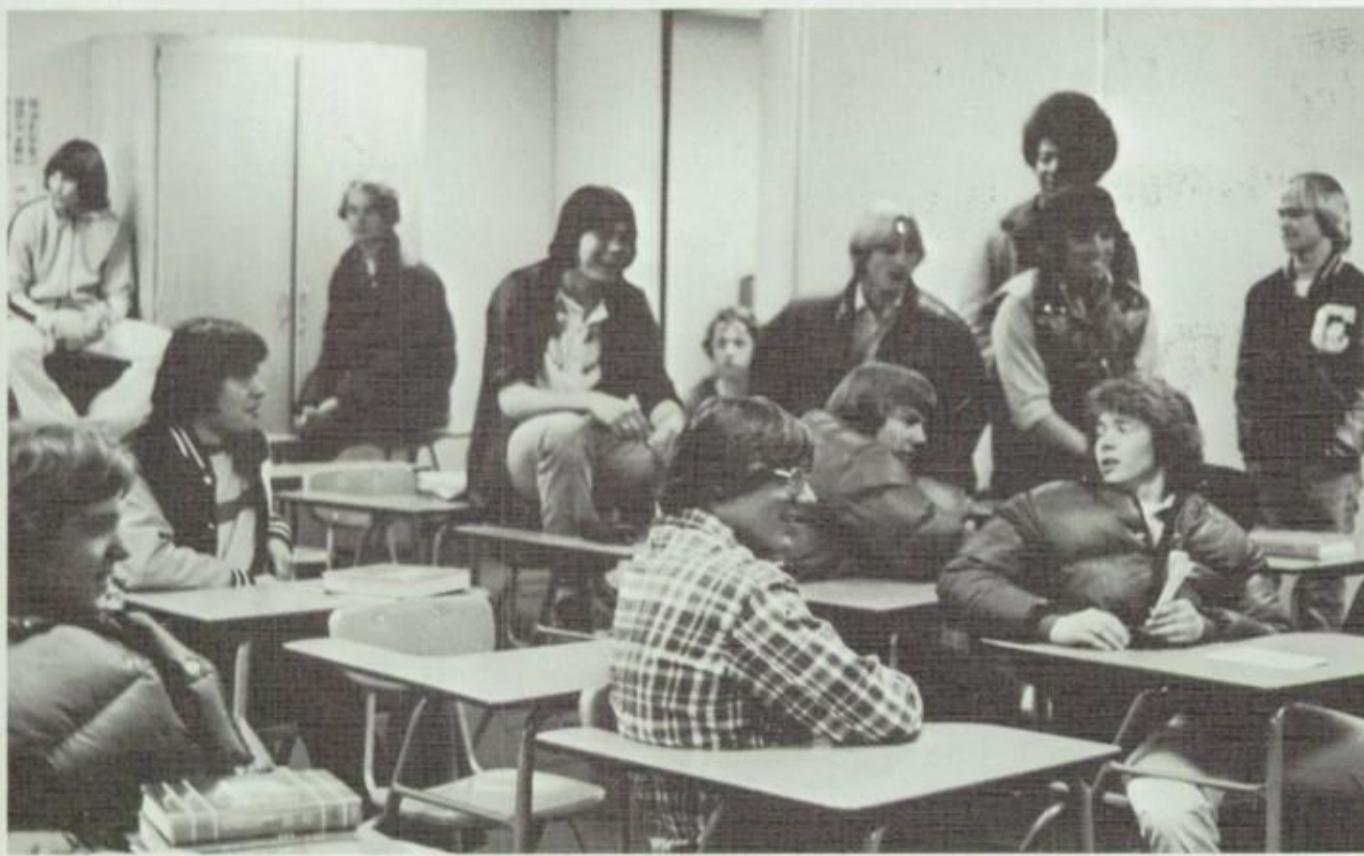

Club provided escorts for both football and basketball homecoming candidates this year. They also worked in the concession stands during those games.

The Club sponsored a 50's Dance in April and held car washes to raise money. Many hours were also spent cleaning up the school's grounds. Meetings were held every Monday at 12 pm in Mr. Dillard's room.

Officers were; Bret Andreas, president; Matt Teixeria, vice-president; Jeff Wittenberg, secretary and Chet Wood, Historian. The advisors were Ron McNutt and Ron Farnworth.

Girls only attend conference

State Conferences, held at Clear Creek Youth Camp June 9-15, were enjoyed by girls only this year.

Unfortunately someone forgot to turn in the boys' applications.

The week consisted of a nature hike, learning about city, county and state government laws and topped off with a course in self defense.

At the end of the week everyone in camp was given a title in a mock government. From Carson, Netty Luhrs was Director of Economic Development; Marta Whitcome, Executive Secretary, Real Estate Division; and Michele Widera, Chairman, State Board of Examiners.

Safety Town aids youths

Safety Town, school bus safety programs, bicycle safety and seat belt surveys, kept Safety Club busy this year.

Safety Town, which was held at the Junior High School taught kindergarten children cross walk safety. Children in kindergarten through sixth grade acquired School Bus Safety instruction. Proper riding, signaling and safety cautions on bicycles were also taught.

Seat Belt Surveys were taken by randomly stopping cars and checking to see how many people used seat belts.

Officers were: Jenny McAuliffe, president; Christy Jones, vice president; Michelle McNeil, historian. Advisor was Kirk Kinne.

Largest club gains more honor students

The National Honor Society, with 125 new members this year, was the largest club at CHS. The group, now 225 strong, was very active with meetings once a month to plan the activities that they sponsored.

Two such activities in February included a trip to the Atmospherium Planetarium and cupcake sales. April saw doughnut sales, and March a bake sale. Speakers, films, and movies usually attracted large groups of interested students to the meetings.

Active Carson band enjoys award-filled year

Carson High's Varsity Band had an active and honor-filled year. They marched in the Nevada Day Parade, the UNR Homecoming Parade and represented Nevada at the Inauguration of President Jimmy Carter, in Washington, D.C.

In addition to the three Parades, they gave three concerts during the year. The first was in conjunction with the community choir.

The band won two awards for their marching this year. They were named the outstanding band in the UNR Parade and won a competition between Elko, White Pine and Carson for the right to represent Nevada in the inaugural parade. Carson was the band recommended by Governor Mike O'Callaghan.

Marching band represents Nevada in parade

This year saw the marching band being honored by Governor Mike O'Callahan as Nevada's representative to the Inauguration of President Jimmy Carter.

Three Nevada bands, Carson, Elko and Whitepine, competed for the opportunity to represent Nevada in the Inaugural Parade. These were the only bands that felt they would be able to raise the necessary funds.

Bandsmen and parents spent a month between the time the winner was announced and the Inauguration, raising the over 000 needed. They held two raffles, solicited private donations and parents contributed per family to reach their goal.

The band left January 18 on the eight day trip, during which they visited Colonial Williamsburg, Washington D.C. for the Inauguration, Philadelphia and New York.

Carson traveled with another band from Alaska and a small group from Louisiana. They flew to Virginia and bussed to the other sights.

The third day, the 20th, saw the musicians waiting for, marching in and resting after the Inaugural parade. They spent the rest of the trip watching plays, seeing movies and sightseeing.

Bandsmen win state honors

Carson High's Jazz band kept an active schedule this year, performing at all of Carson's home basketball games, giving mini concerts during the fund raising activities and playing at UNR's basketball tournament.

Twenty-seven students won positions in this year's Honor Band. This was the largest contingent of musicians from CHS in the band since it was formed. Eight of these musicians went on to win spots in the all-state band.

Musicians' number increases over year

The year-old JV band was comprised of forty freshmen musicians this year. It was twice as large as last year's when it formed.

The freshmen participated in the same activities as the Varsity Band, but they practiced an hour earlier. The entire Band was together on Thursday night rehearsals.

Officers for both bands were Pam Belford, president; Kent

Carter, vice-president; Darlene Rowland, secretary/treasurer; Shannon Finlayson, drum majorette and Don Wass, loading crew chief.

The officers presided over band council meetings, organized parties and helped plan the many activities of the band.

Singers entertain at concerts

Two concerts, Christmas and Spring, highlighted the Chorus schedule this year. The concerts were held in the Community Center in the auditorium.

Another activity was the hayride with a party afterwards in December. The chorus members rode around town on a haywagon and sang a few songs for Carson City Residents.

Most of the Chorus traveled to Reno for Honor Choir tryouts in January. All-state was chosen in February.

Joe Dowell became CHS' chorus instructor this year. Most practice sessions were in the drama room immediately following the morning session. This was the special hour set aside for band and chorus rehearsals.

Officers serving chorus were Valerie Schacher, president; Susan Grundy, vice-president; Pam Maskaly, secretary; Kay Knapp, treasurer; and Paul Aberasturi and Mary Replogle, representatives.

Talented CHS singers seek Honor Choir

After practicing for tryouts for a month, eight talented chorus members achieved positions in honor choir early in the year.

Tryouts were held in Reno High School, with twelve CHS students traveling to the competition. Tapes were made and judged of those in honor choir who were eligible to become All-State Choir members.

Those seven honored students chosen were considered the best in the state. A trip to Las Vegas was one of the privileges of All-State Choir.

Business oriented club honors member Nola Thielke

The Future Business Leaders of America plan various money-making projects during the course of the year to pay off any debts and to help finance the trip to the State Leadership Conference in Las Vegas.

This year they had a cookie party to recruit new members and to honor members like Nola Thielke, a national winner in advanced stenography.

The business oriented group also had speakers discussing different careers in the business world.

FBLA members work toward learning about business occupations. They compete with others in typing, stenography, bookkeeping and other office practices at the state and national level. This year's officers were Jamie Newpher, president; Rosie Mason, vice-president; Nola Thielke, secretary/treasurer; Kim Shaughnessy, reporter/historian and Elaine Saarem, parliamentarian. Phyllis Bendure and Carol Schellin were advisors for the group.

Parades, field trips highlights busy schedule

Under the direction of Battalion Commander Mike Lovelace and Executive Officer Laurel Smith, the CHS NJROTC Unit completed its most successful year to date.

The Unit again put on the 4th of July Parade, this year celebrating 200 years of our country's independence. The Drum and Bugle Corp garnered a first and second place and the "Spirit of 76" award while Color Guard received the "Theme Trophy" and a second place in the parade.

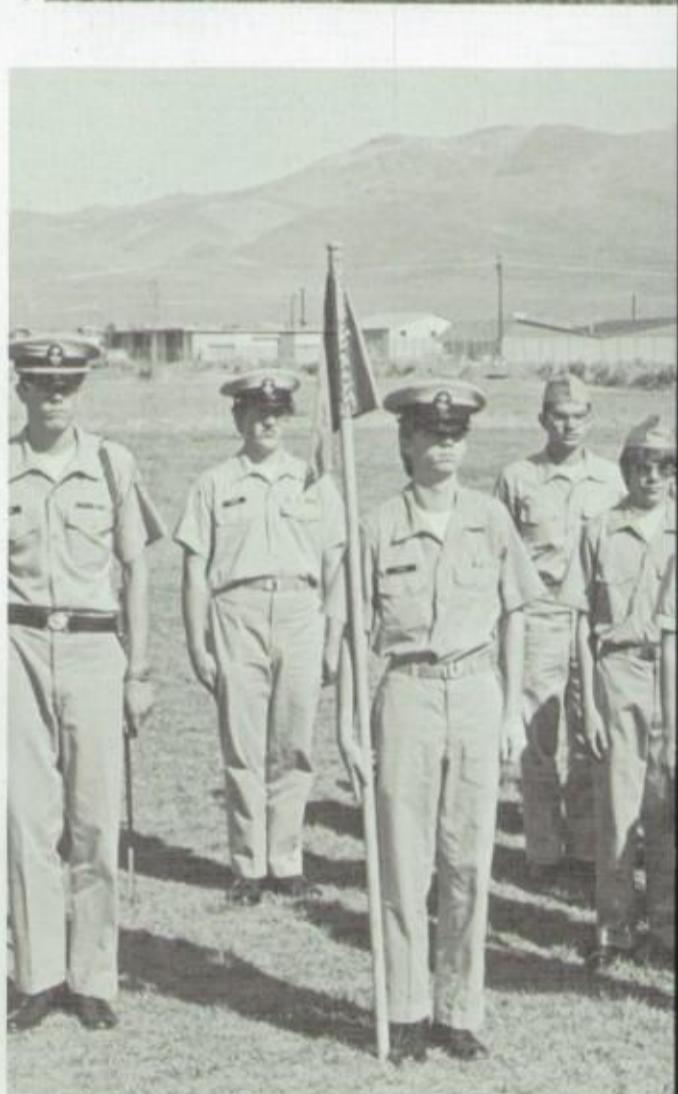

Both Unit Color Guards marched in the Santa Maria Day Parade in Dayton.

The first two money-making projects, a candy sale and the American Flag lease project earned the Unit over $1300. Car washes, candy sales and other activities were carried out over the course of the year. The Color Guard presented colors for all the home football and basketball games.

The cadets spent two days in October and November helping the Public Health Nurse administer swine flu shots. The Christmas food drive for the needy got underway in the second week of December.

The first field trip of the year saw the Cadets at NAS Fallon watching the U.S. Navy's Blue Angels perform their intricate maneuvers. Other field trips included an all-senior trip to Mere Island in Vallejo, Calif., a cruise aboard a Navy ship out of San Francisco and cold weather training at the U.S. Marine Corps Mountain Warfare Training Center at Bridgeport, Calif. Mini-Boot Camp at Naval Training Center in San Diego was attended by most of the NJROTC students. The return trip included a stop at Disneyland and Magic Mountain.

It was almost a clean sweep for the Unit at Operation Get-Together held in November. All AAA schools in Northern Nevada participated and Carson won two of the three categories.

The finale of the school year was the Navy Ball in May. At this time the new Queen was crowned, awards were presented and officers for the 1977-78 school year were announced.

Top cadets attend military isle

Twelve top NJROTC students traveled to Mare Island during the week of February 6-11 for military training.

Every year honored CHS NJROTC students go to Mare Island which is the Costal River Division IX Brown Water Navy and receive training. They are trained in the driving of small military boats, navigation and first aid.

A highlight of the trip was when the Bravo patrol got stuck 41 miles off course in the mud for five hours.

Cheers help unify split school

Although the school was "split up" this year, the spirit leaders kept it unified by involving most students in cheers and routines and by boosting school spirit at assemblies and at pep rallies.

20 practice long hours for Carson

Time spent cheering at games wasn't all that kept CHS cheerleaders busy this year.

Long practice hours were spent before and after school as the spirit leaders perfected cheers and routines to be performed at games, assemblies and community activities.

The spirit leaders traveled to Reno, Susanville, Las Vegas, and Placerville, combining efforts to cheer the CHS teams on to victory.

Team proves they're super stars

Carson's Varsity football team, under the guidance of Coach John Giannandrea, knew and proved they did know how to put together a winning season.

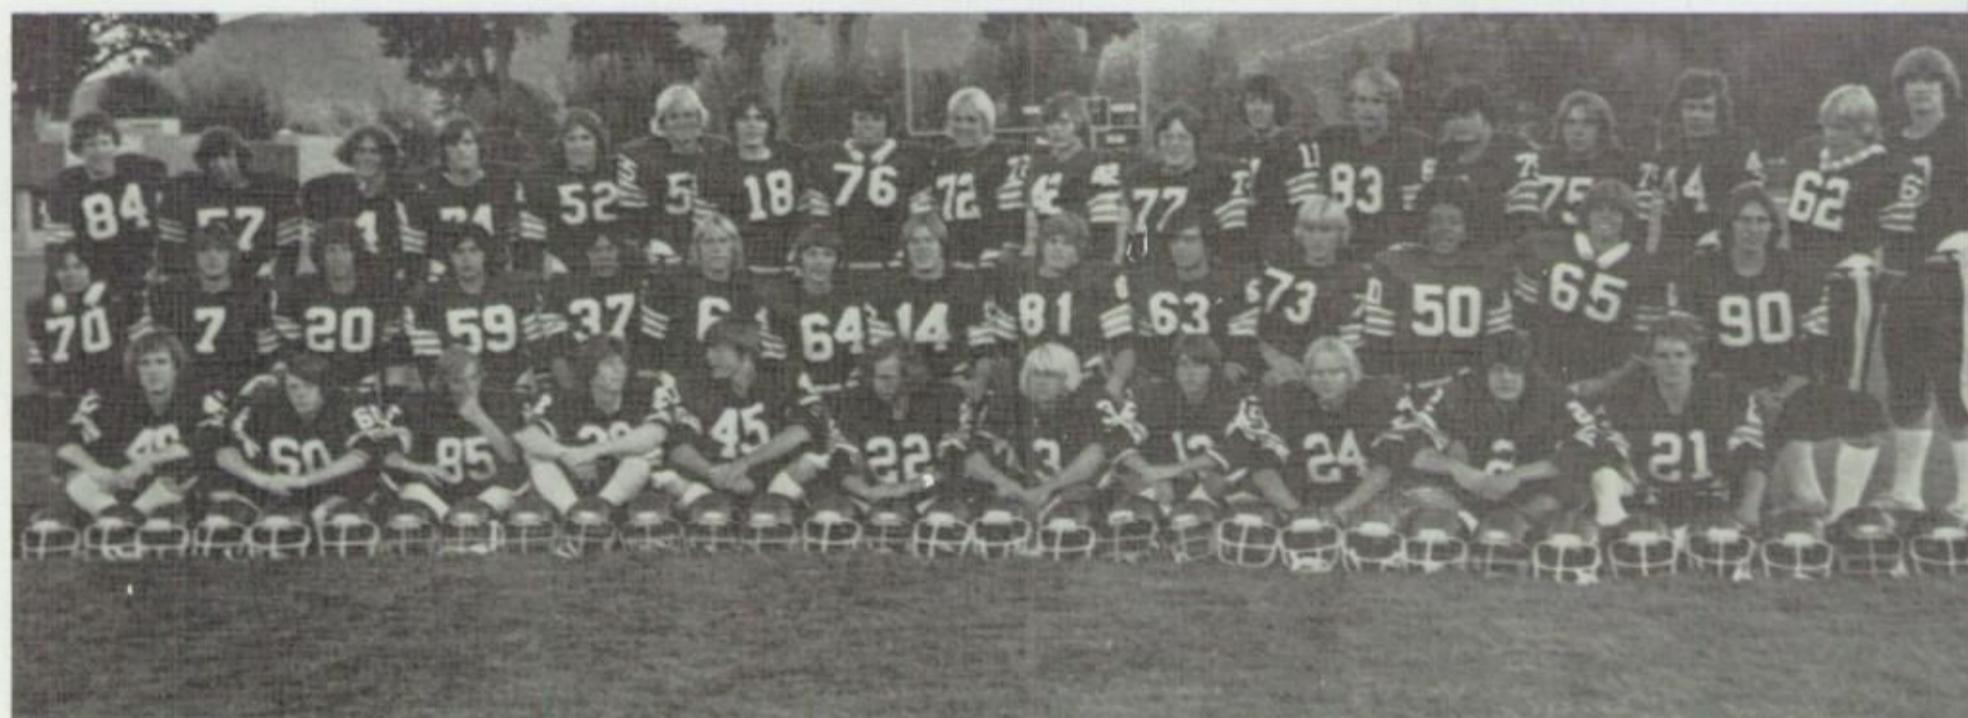

"This team was a good one to coach," said Coach G. Team effort helped Bret Andreas break a school record of kick-off returns with a touchdown run of 97 yards. The Punt Return team also helped Paul Kerfeld and John Kennedy keep the team in good field position during most games.

Each team member should be called a super star, because each player gave his all plus some during this 5-4 season.

Ron McNutt coached the backs; Ron Farnsworth and Chuck Tremain coached the line.

Senators spark good season

The Senators have improved greatly this season. Coach G led them on to win most of their games.

The team found themselves superstars, with several outstanding players.

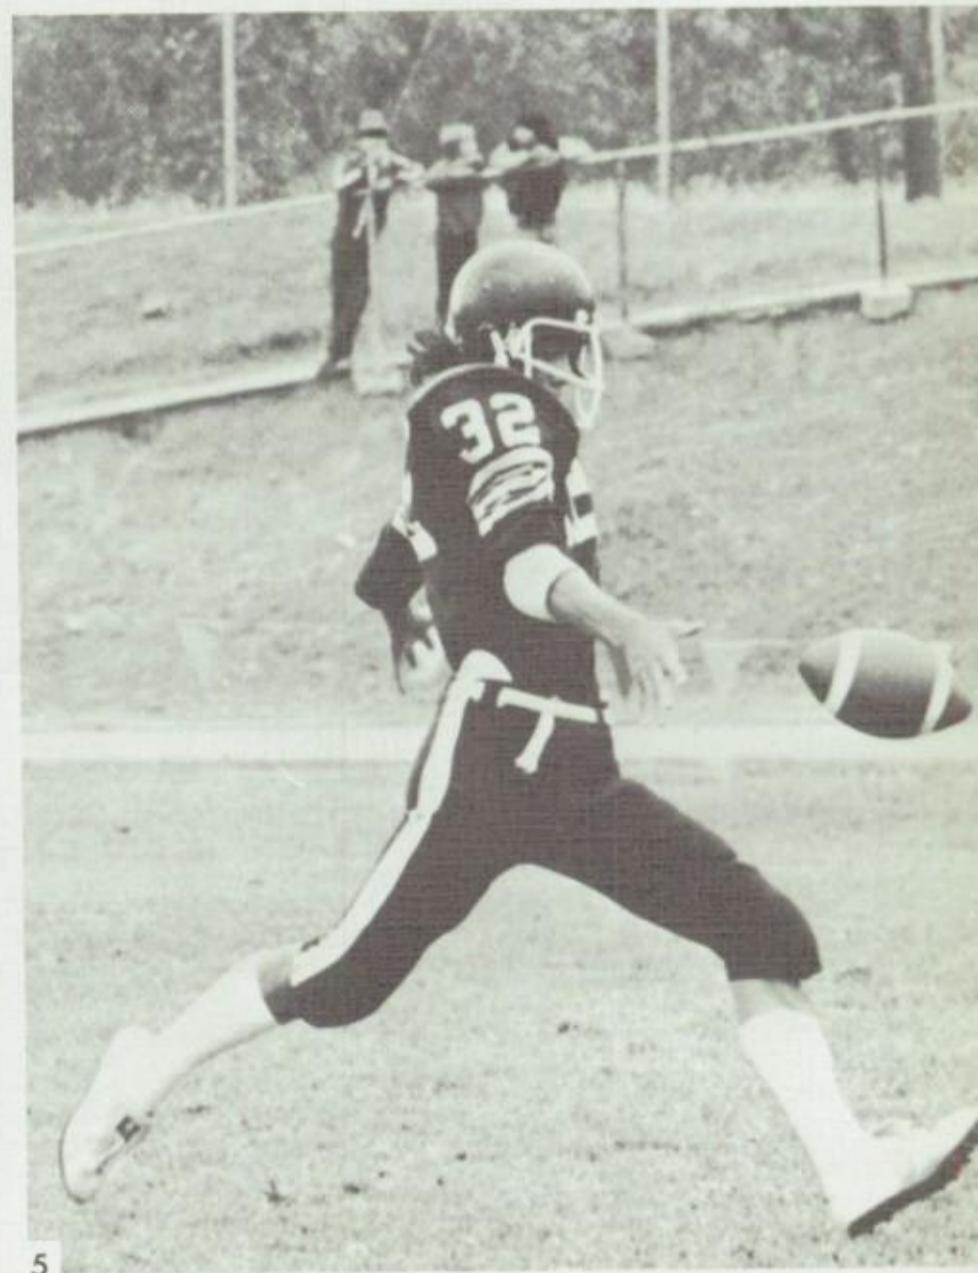

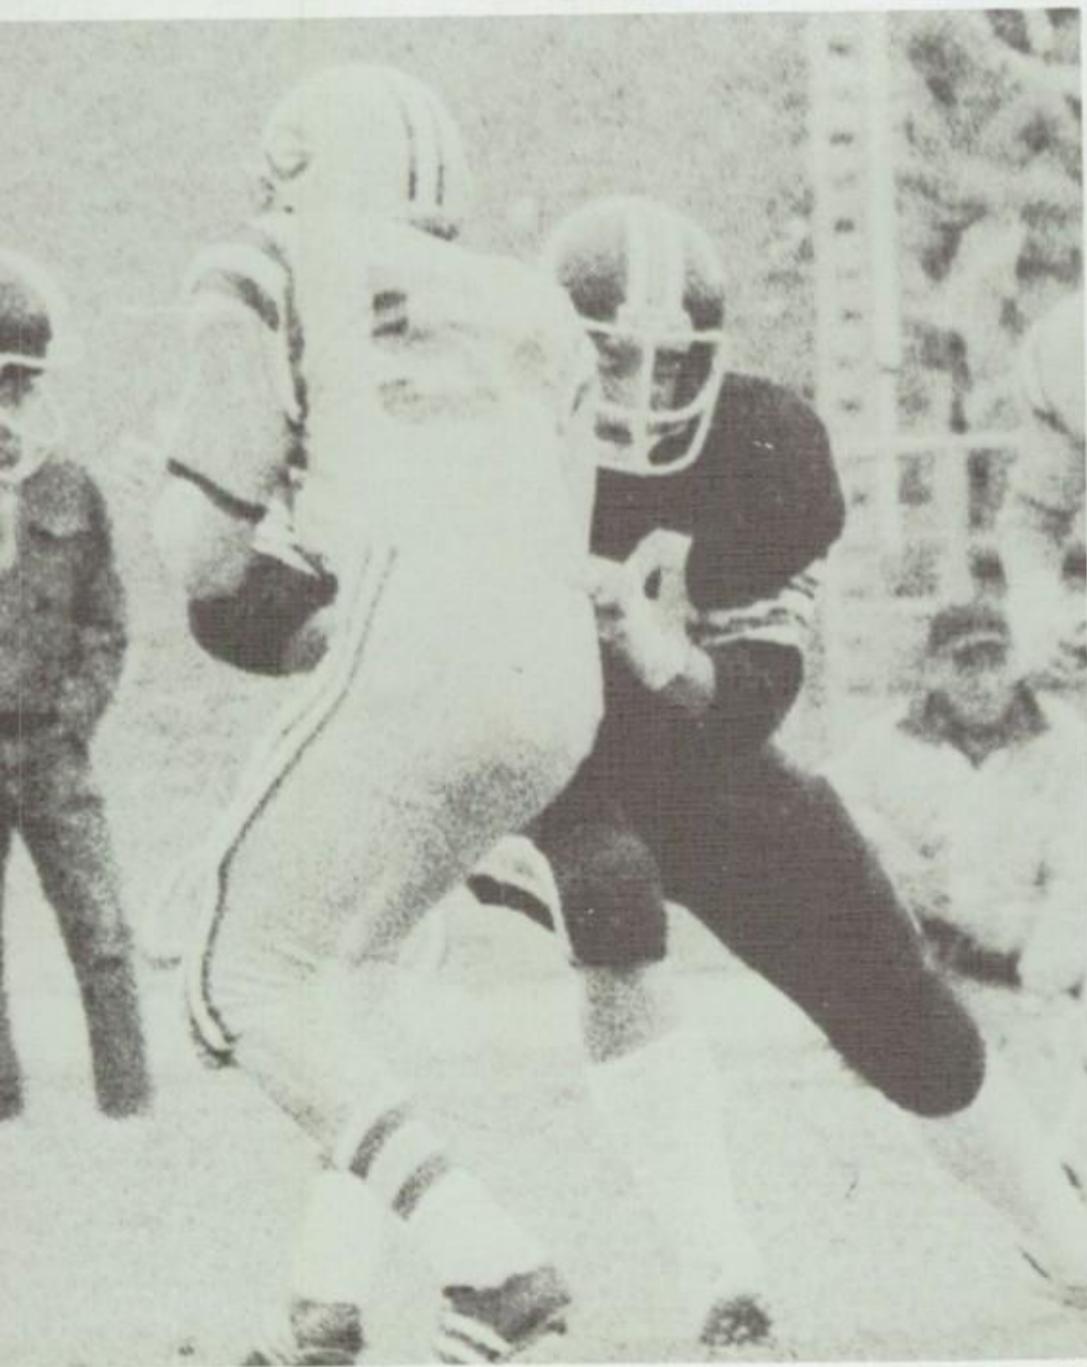

Paul Kerfeld, John Kennedy, and Jim Good were some of the limelighters. They broke records as well as giving the team an edge throughout the season.

1. Carson's Craig Page crawls head on into a Gorman player with the ball still in his hand. 2. The opponent's fumble is recovered by the Senator's Paul Kerfeld. 3. Jim Good passes to Ken Chalk while Fred Matthews tackles a player from the other team. 4. After been handed the ball Jim Good attempts to make some yardage. 5. Senators earn 5-3 season

Carson High's JV team, coached by John Sullivan, earned an impressive 5-3 season.

Jim Good was the leading ground gainer with 420 yards. Dean Schmanski was named Best Offensive Player for passing 587 yards and rushing 315 yards.

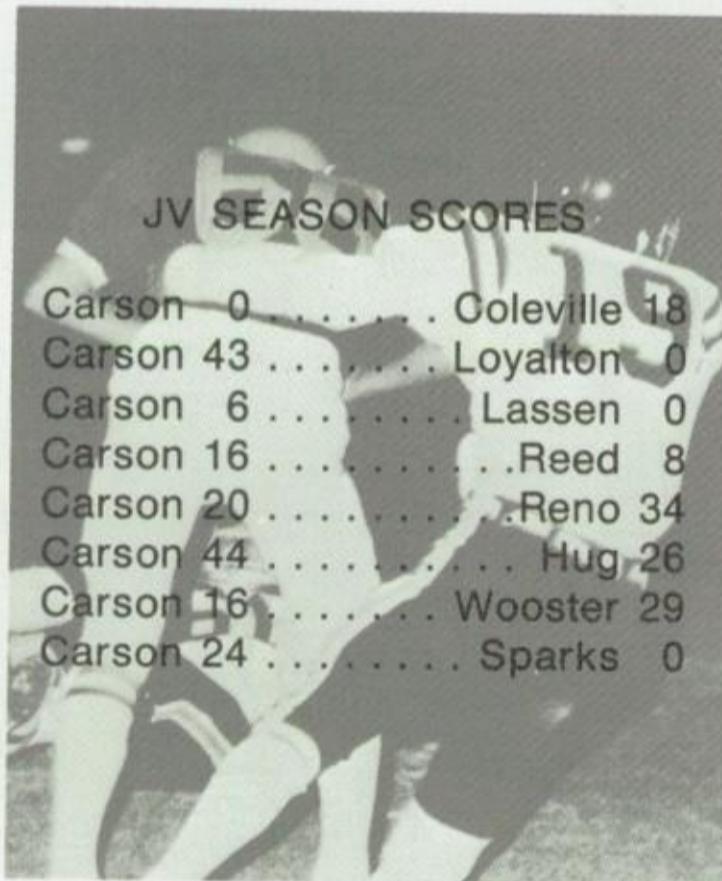

Successful in most games, the JV earned a high of 44 points in one game—that of Hug.

Good kicked a record 60 yards.

With a record-breaking season behind them, the JV team promises good games in the future.

Coach Cattanach lauds future super stars

CHS's Frosh team, under Coach Butch Cattanach, had a winning season of 5-4. Their coach praised them for a fine job of backing one another and for coming through as winners.

Aaron Ingelman, one of their better players, moved up to the varsity team earlier in the season. But soon Steve Heckman took his place to continue the unified team effort.

Throughout the season they steadily improved, and there were new stars for every game. And the frosh never gave up. This team never had a punt blocked, nor a punt or kickoff returned all the way for an opponent score.

Coach Cattanach described the frosh as an unselfish team which is expected to become future superstars.

Racketeers serve up success

Girls' tennis ended the season with an 8-2 winning record. The team was outstanding according to Coach Brenda Blackham. They had some great single and double teams. Becky Ford took first in the zone singles. Lisa Davis and Vanessa Ford out did themselves in taking first in zone and in the state tournament. The girls ended second in AAA conference.

Boys' tennis ended its season with a 5-5 conference record. They were successful in zone and state as were the girls. The doubles team of Chet Wood and George Fry was superb Coach Chet Wood stated. They placed third in zone and fifth in state competition.

Players tee off for action

Benefitted by the return of six lettermen, this year's golf team started off with a win conference play.

Playing each Reno team twice, and with the top three teams going to state, Coach Roy Kidder felt that his team would be in the top three.

Unable to use any Carson City golf recreational areas, the team had to play all its matches in the Reno area.

Zone Champions overwhelm opposition

Wrestling has been considered a minor sport, deserving only an occasional acknowledgement from the media of CHS. This year the matches proved this statement wrong.

This year's team was the first undefeated varsity team at CHS in 16 years. Coached by John Kileen and assisted by Chuck Tremain, the team advanced to the Northern AAA Zone with 13 boys placing with fourths or better, giving the team the championship. Carson won the tournament with 158 points over Sparks with 123, followed by Reno, Wooster, Hug and Reed.

In February all the first through third place finishers qualified for the state tournament in Las Vegas. Mike Ierien placed second, Tony Giannandrea third, Mike DeBusk and Paul Manoukian finished with fourth places.

The team was honored as Athletes of the week by Wilburs and by Pep Club giving a small reception for the team.

Blackman earned titles as both Best Senior and Best Varsity runner.

Although the record shows only a 1-4 season, it doesn't show the time and effort the boys put in.

Since girls haven't been able to compete in Cross Country in previous years, this year four decided to join the JV team to be able to test themselves against other Northern Nevada school teams.

The JV team earned a 3-2 season with wins over Reed, Reno and Wooster. At the Carson Invitational, the team earned third.

Carson five intimidate competitors

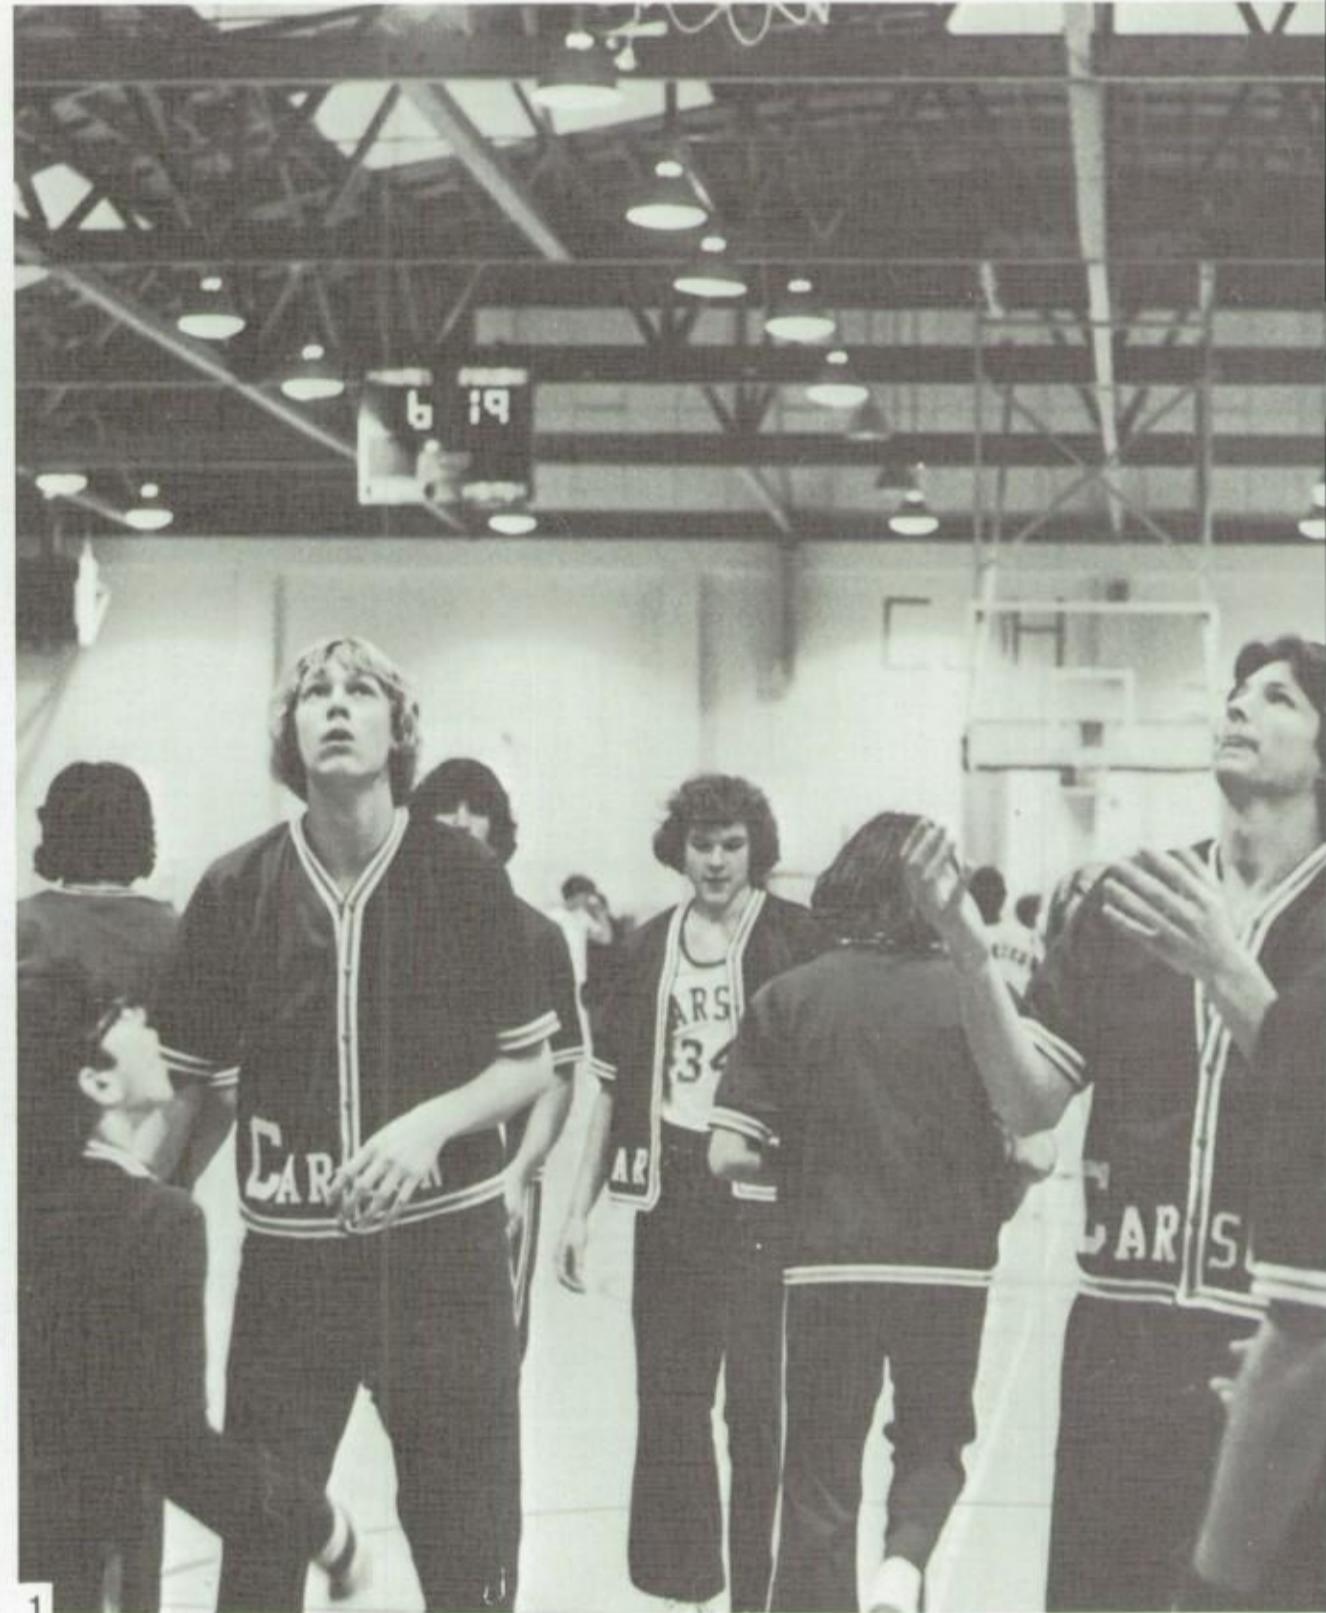

Although Boise, Idaho's team was the toughest opponent, the Carson Varsity Basketball team competed against this year, Carson didn't let Boise's extreme size and talent intimidate them.

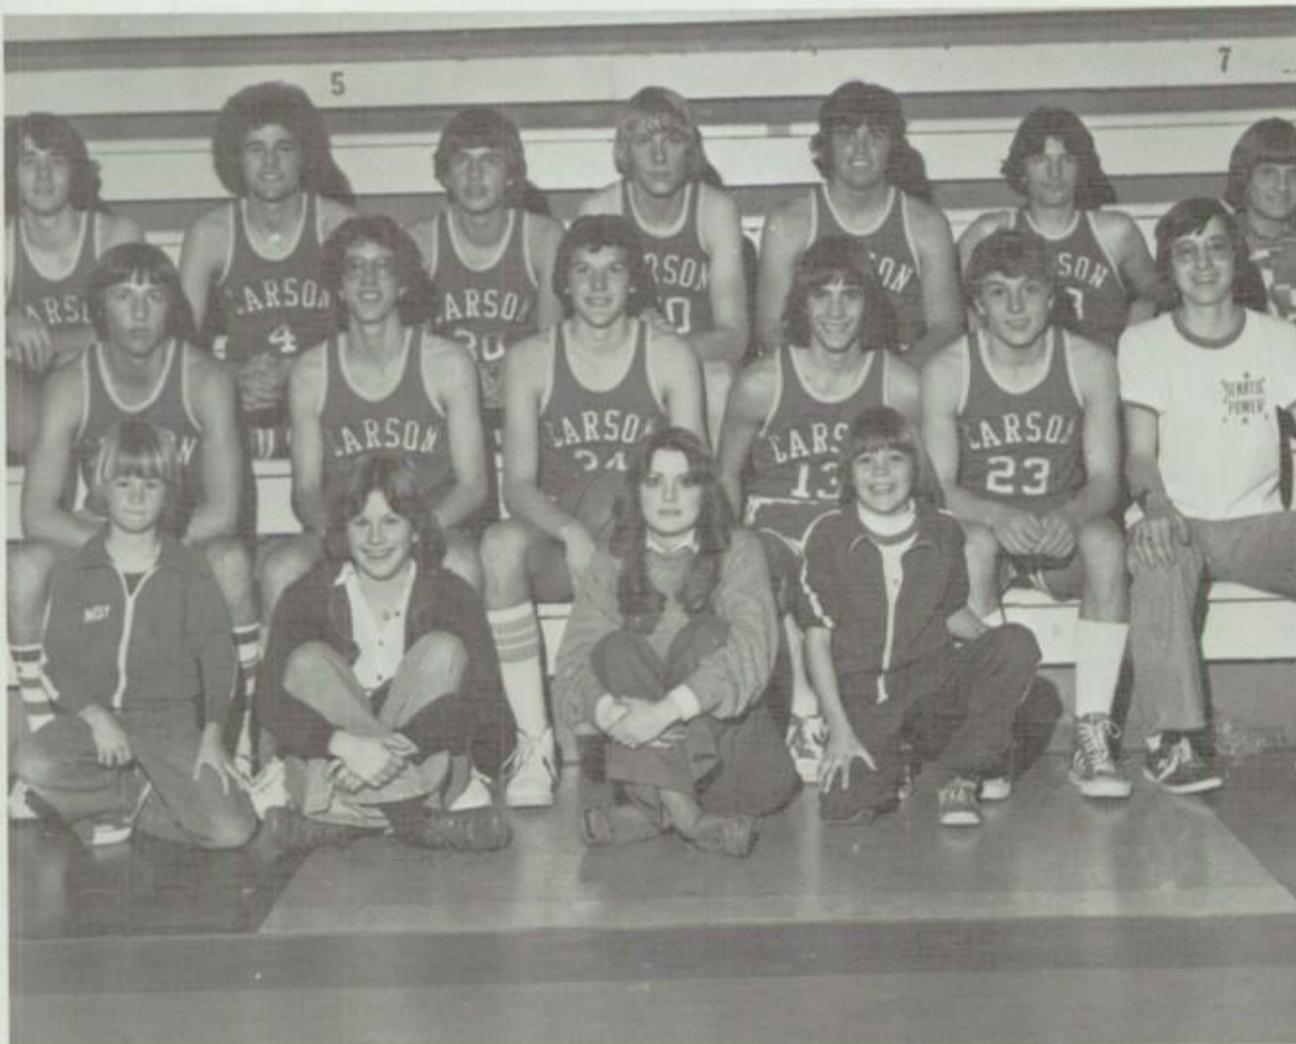

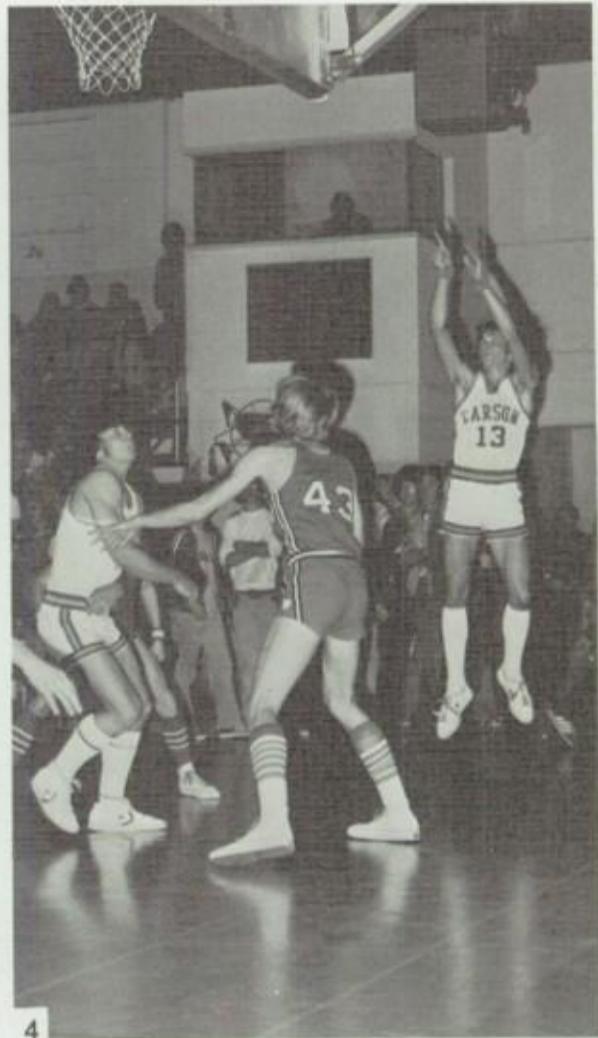

"Our team was a strong team with good individual players. As well as being strong players the team has good potential," stated the Varsity Basketball Coach, Tom Andreasen.

Ranking among the top guards in CHS history, Morey Tresnit was the teams' best all around player. "Morey is one of the hardest workers and he hustled on the court all the time," said the coach.

In Coach Andreasen's opinion, the most improved player was Jim Good. "The stronger the opposition, the better he played." A top scorer and rebounder, Jim proved to be one of Carson's star basketball players.

Excelling as a shooter, Bill Canfield was also the team's top rebounder. Coach Andreasen felt Bill had the potential to be a better basketball player.

Teammates bounce back in Zone

This year's Varsity Basketball team's effort was endless, even when losing was inevitable. Although Carson started with a winning season they slowly went downhill as their defenses weakened and their offensive strategy failed to hamper many opposing teams.

After a depressing season, Carson came back strong when they beat Sparks, which qualified them for State. Losing to Wooster and Reed by one point each, they took fourth place in zone.

13-2 record highlights JV's season

Being the conference champs with a seasonal record of 13-2, Carson's Junior Varsity basketball team completed an outstanding season. Chalmer Dillard, the JV Coach, felt that the two hour practice time after school improved the team immensely.

Rex Sweet, the team best all around player, lead the Senators to many of the teams victories. Dean Heller was a fine defensive player as well as a leading rebounder and one of the high scorers.

Kirk Houston was not only a tough defender, but also a top scorer. Doug Gamble added to the team by being the player that excelled in all phases of the game, especially the center jump. Being a great ball handler, Daryl Schofield's touch with the ball enabled him to be the team's outstanding passer and a very good shooter. Coming off the bench, Craig Burnside and Andy Fitts did an outstanding job.

Home games successful

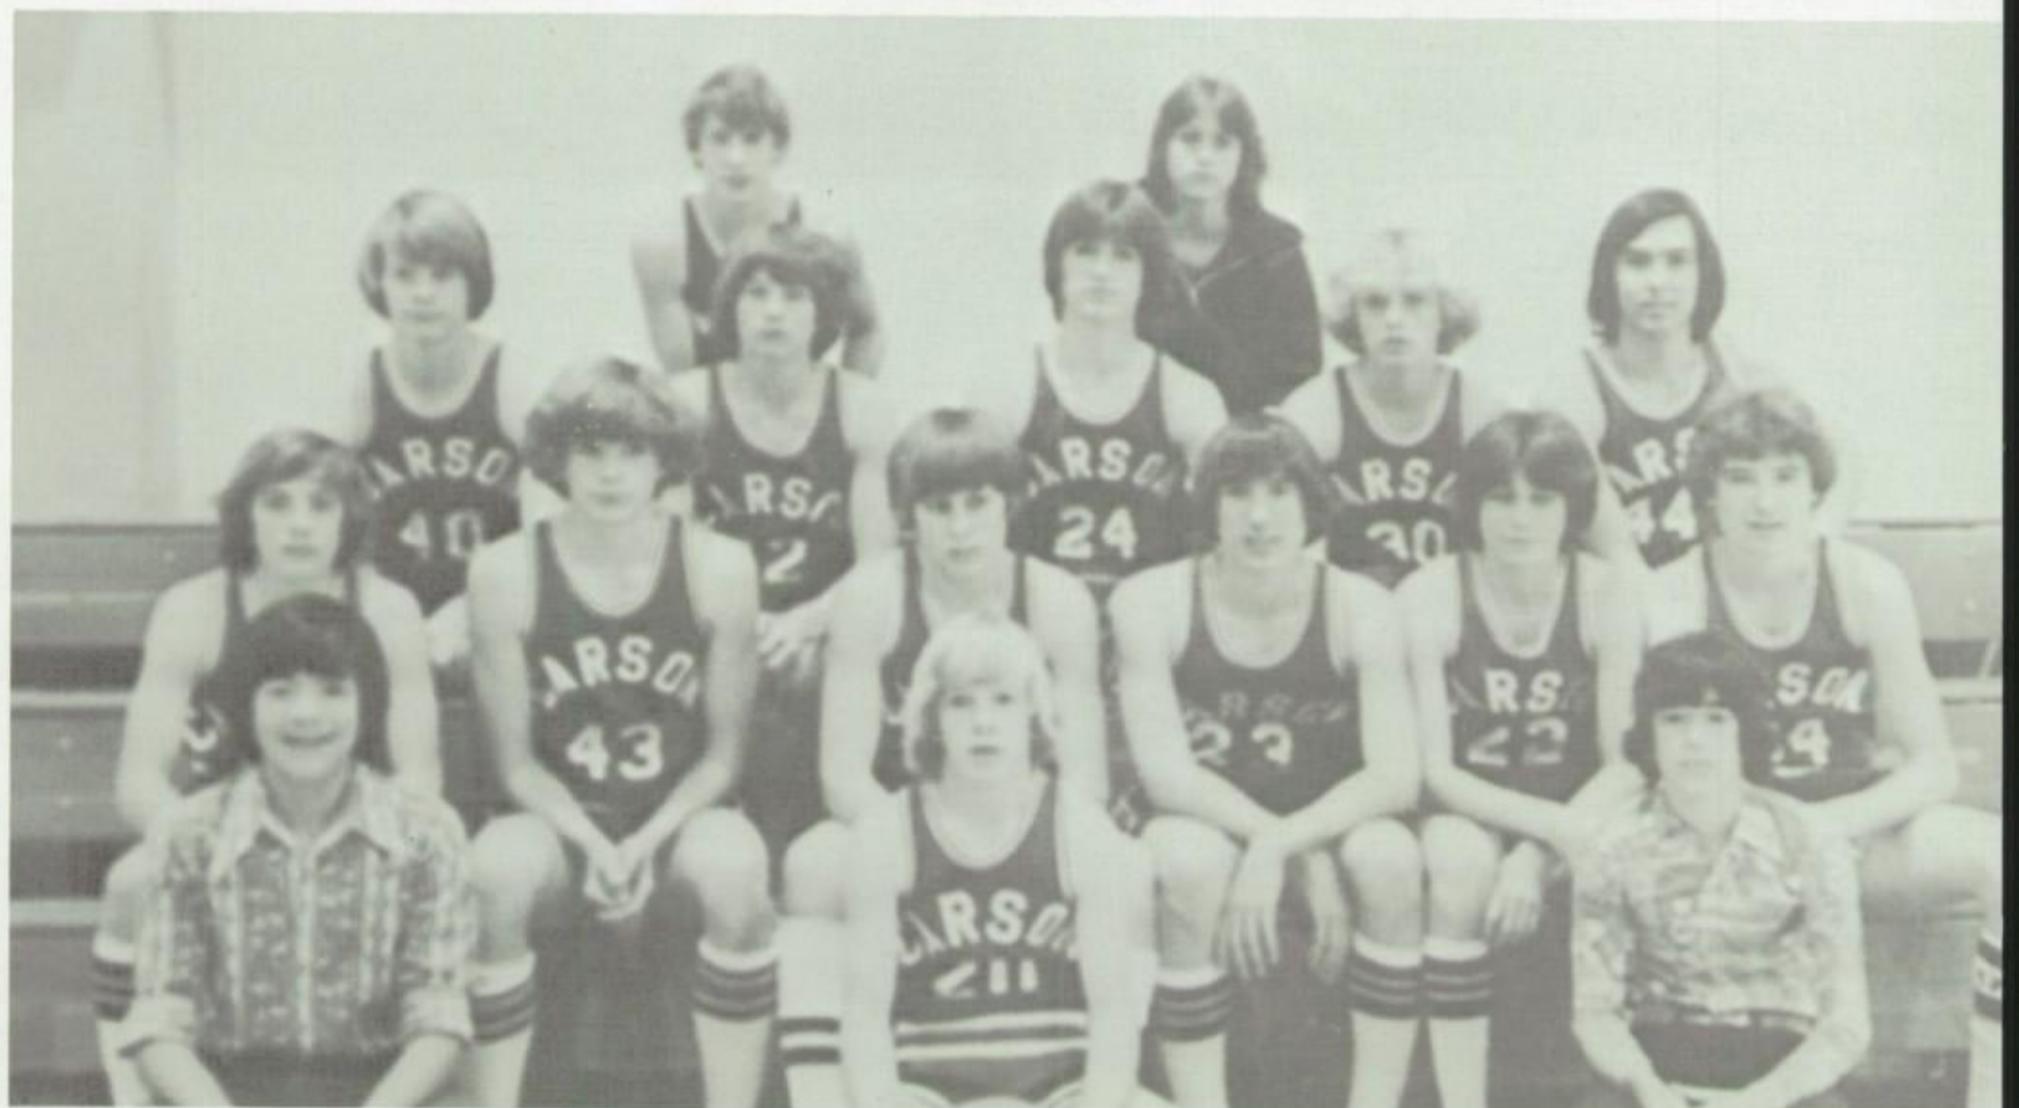

The hard working Freshmen Basketball team tried their hardest to win all of their games throughout the season.

Reed seemed to be the most difficult opponent this year. The team members, according to Coach Roy Kidder, progressed and worked hard to improve. He also stated the team seemed to play better at home games than away.

The farthest the team had to travel for a game was 45 miles where they played at Coleville.

Bump, set, spike to victory

Carson High girls' volleyball team had a very good season this year pulling out with a 9-3 seasonal record and 8-2 in conference play.

The outstanding players were setters, Rose Hoffert and Heidi Hand, along with spikers, Beth Gierke, Kathy Bolduc, Nancy Cunningham, and Pam Mosley.

Playing the 4-2 offense, the Senators became the team with the most opportunities to spike with good sets from the center. They had a lot of ability to receive serves and pick up spikes even though they played the no-block defense.

Carson tied with Reno for first in conference play and placed second in zone. While in state they became one of the top four teams tying for third with Eldorado High from Las Vegas.

Track team adds new twist to program

Carson High School added a new twist to the track program this year. Six coaches were involved working with some eighty students. Coaching responsibilities were divided up into event groups rather than specifically by sex. Although Debi Horton and Jim Frank were the designated head coaches for girls and boys respectively, Chuck Tremain and Barbara Degenkolb worked with girls and boys involved in shot putting and discus events; Wally Dewitt coached girl and boy distance runners; Steve Olsen worked with male sprinters; Jim Frank with all freshmen boys and girls; and Debi Horton with female sprinters and long and high jumpers.

The coaching staff was enthusiastic about this new approach and soon saw exciting results of the students involved in their various competitions. The strength, endurance, technique improvement, and motivational level seemed to climb ever higher and the coaches were hoping to see this trend continue.

Determination heads good season

Ending with a 5-5 season record, girls' basketball made enough of an impression to go to zone competition and walk away with third place.

Girls' coach Debi Horton stressed the all-out effort the girls had in their games. And since none of the girls had ever competed in a conference schedule, "they really tried their best," Coach Horton explained.

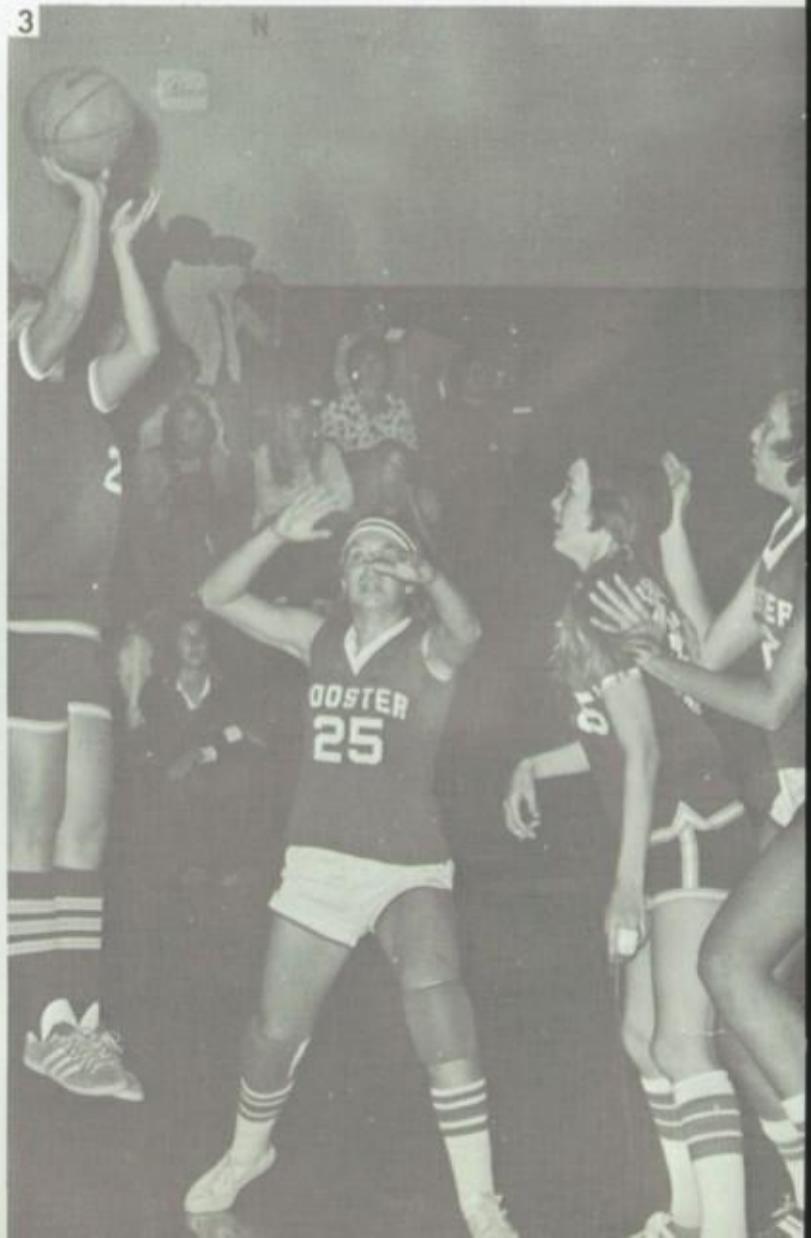

Karen Wood was the team's most valuable player scoring the highest total points of 94 and tallying 68 percent of her free throw attempts. Named second most valuable player was Laura McGoodwin. She was right behind Karen in scoring 71 total points and 61 percent of her free throws.

Carson nine utilize new diamond

Varsity Baseball team's non-conference games started the season off well. Coach McNutt had high hopes that the team would continue to play as well throughout the conference season.

The team consisted mainly of seniors, most of them returning lettermen, with some juniors and sophomores.

Carson High's newly finished field was the site for all the home games. The field was finally completed when the scoreboard was put up and the dugouts finished.

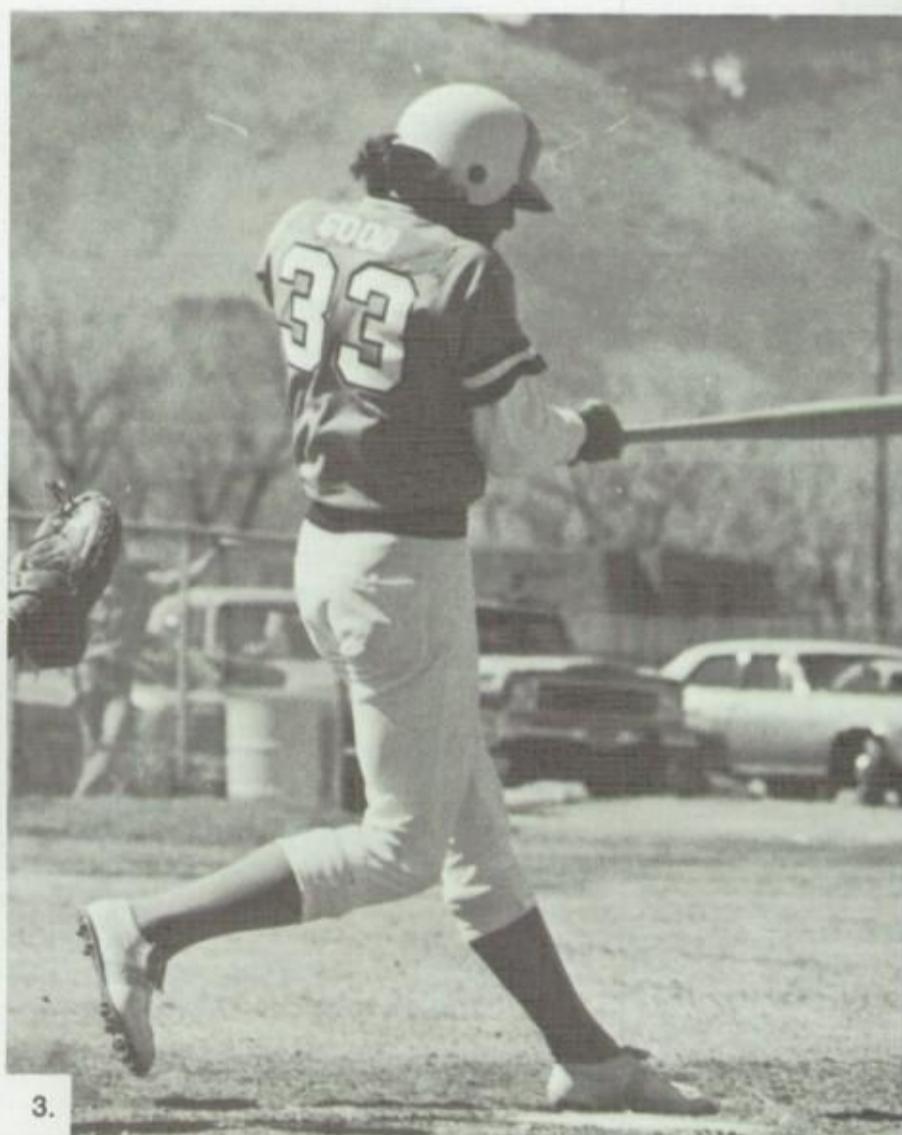

For the second year in a row, Ron McNutt and Ron Farnworth, coached the varsity team.

Hits, runs highlight ball games

Starting the season with a 34-0 non-conference win over Incline, Carson's Junior Varsity Baseball team set a high standard for the rest of the season.

Combining the efforts of 22 players, it seemed inevitable for the team to climb to the top.

Mark Whitworth and Mitch Kaylor batting a .667 for the season were Carson's top hitters while Rory Weinty and Rich Vaughn followed close behind with .500 each. Pitching on the JV team were Mitch Kaylor, Bill Grow, Chris Anderson and Mike Pintar.

Having high hopes for the season, Coach George Parmenter felt that there were very good prospects for next years Varsity team.

Senators team up for softball

For the first time ever, Carson High organized an interscholastic softball team for girls. The Senators took the Reno/Sparks schools by surprise when they displayed their high caliber of play.

Sixty-four girls tried out for the team and twenty-one were chosen. Steve Kelly coached the team while Terri Clark assisted.

Home conference games were played at Centennial Park while away games were held at Idlewild.

Processing toward a new system

It's hard to determine what will occur in the future. Circumstances are forever changing what is planned.

The builders of Carson High School had no idea that the city would grow so quickly and completely. Suddenly we found ourselves with 2000 students in a building to accommodate 1800.

The outcome: double sessions. "Progress" is what most people say is causing our changing school system, but to others, it is a drawback on educational value.

1. One of Mary-Ellen Clark's freshmen English classes had not one empty desk and in fact didn't have enough desks for all the students. 2. After the last bell rang, a rush of students exploded from the doors to load buses, catch rides or start on the walk home. 3. If the students hurried, they could escape from the parking lot before long lines formed. 4. CHS's security guard, Cliff Miller, helped control the traffic flow out of the overcrowded parking lots. 5. Long lines of buses waited near the front entrance for the students who lived too far from school to walk and later for those who would have had to walk in the dark. 6. In the afternoon the buses filled up rapidly with the departing freshmen.

Solitude: hard to come by

In a school of over 2000 students, it's difficult to find time for individualism.

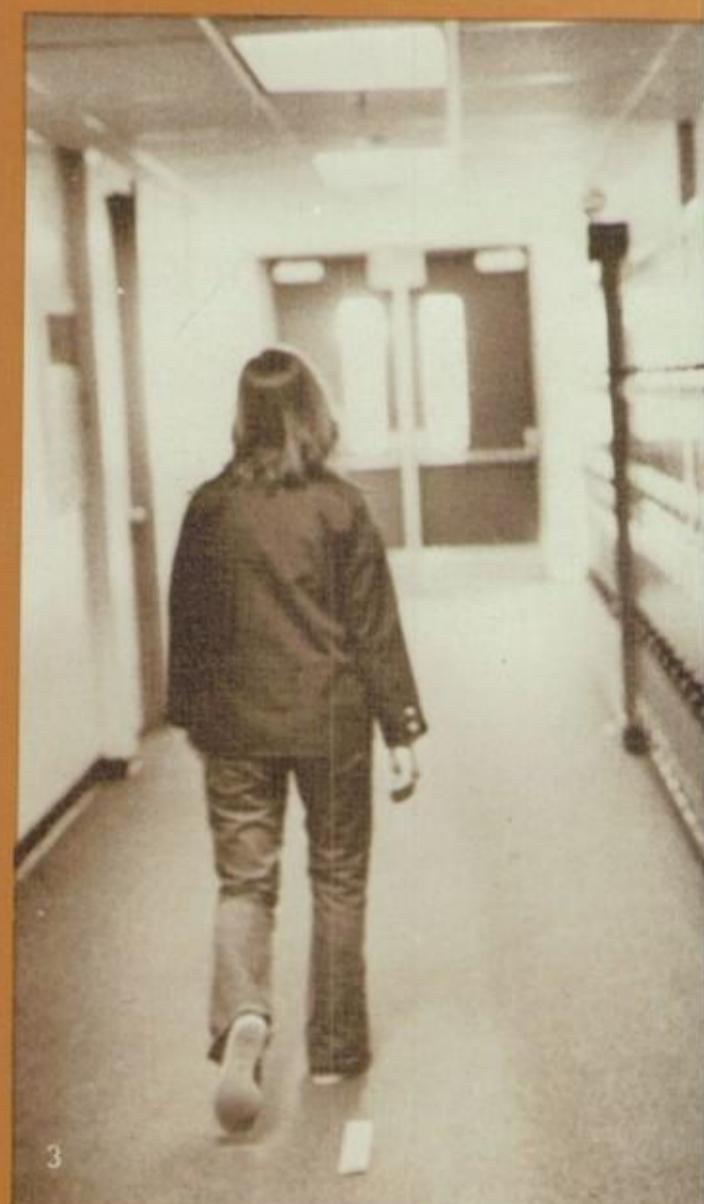

Carson High is growing and expanding every day but so is the student body. We've gained approximately 100 students over the past year.

Sometimes teachers as well as students need time to be alone with their own thoughts and problems.

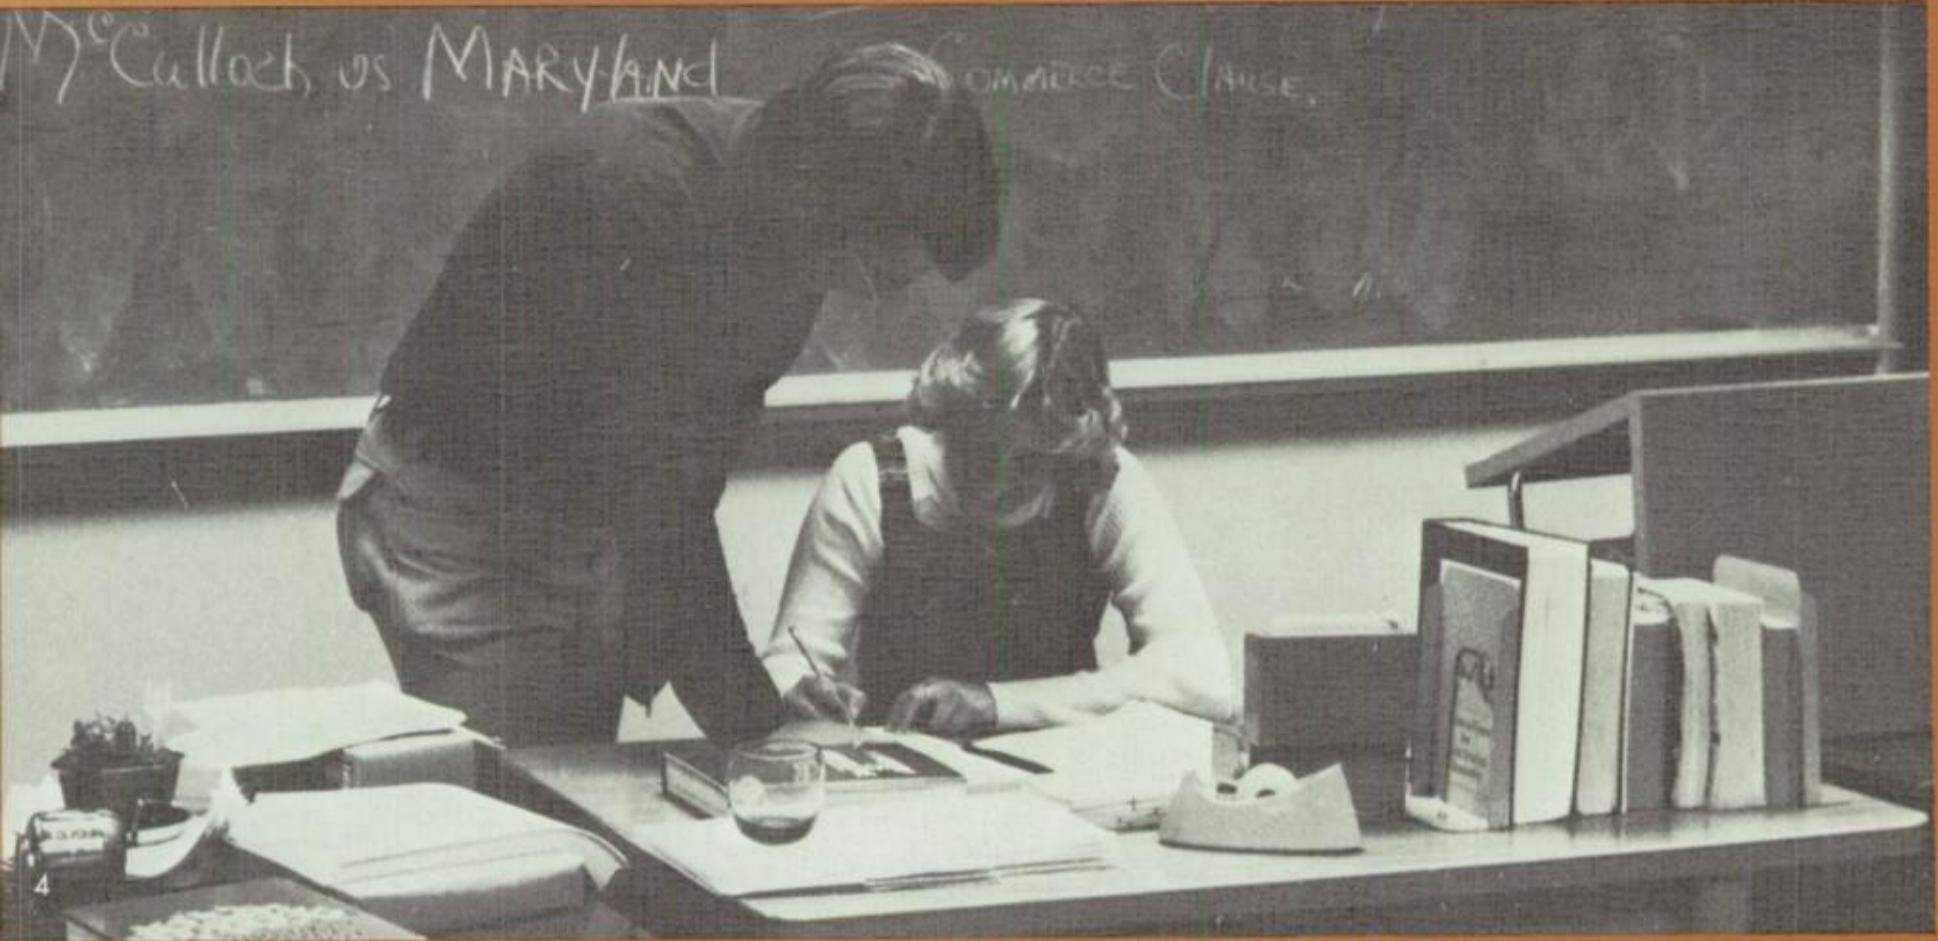

Maybe soon our school will allow no time for this solitude. Perhaps it's best to enjoy what we have now, before it's too late.

CARNETA dedicates
these pages to those who are no longer with us. They would want us to remember the good times.

After a long year of faces, names and indepth investigation I am beginning to know Carson High School a lot better. The year has been filled with changes and a number of unexpected surprises. Producing a publication means being close to those changes and surprises, analyzing them, and relating them in the best and most interesting way. It is not an easy job, but it can be fun and very rewarding.

Think of all the changes: double sessions, newly elected public officials and the legislation passed. And of course the many surprises: the water main breaking, the late winter, the winning sports teams and the pet rock contest. With a dedicated effort my staff and I tried to make those events memorable in this year's CARNETA.

Naturally we couldn't do it alone. People like Dale Brown, Tammy Betshart and Rosann Gross spent their free time helping us on tight deadlines. Students like Tony Smith and Lonnie Sutter helped in photography, too.

For those in beginning journalism, learning yearbook techniques wasn't easy. But Kelly Goodman, Teri Taylor and Tom Buchheister did a magnificent job. Also for the latecomers in advanced journalism, Erin Triem and Ruth Nichols gave an all-out effort. Karen Ashley, in a separate journalism class applied her energies to completing the index for the yearbook.

A number of teachers were forced to be understanding when the yearbook staffers came around to get a fellow staffer out of class to work on deadlines, interrupt classes for pictures or inquire about an unidentified student in a picture. They all showed supreme patience and some even put in extra time to help us out. Included in those were Jill Foltz, Robert Brogan, Ben Goltenhon, Jim Frank, Leontine Bennett, Judith Elges, Richard Cabitto, and Lin Bosch.

Because of the book's theme this year appropriate old pictures weren't easy to come by. But with the help of the Nevada Magazine, Nevada Highway Department, Carson High School's own library, the Nevada Appeal and the individual contributions of Sandy Slocum and Don Edgington the situation was more successful.

My special thanks goes to John Kileen, that diligent English teacher who stepped in at Leslie Knott's departure and took over advising the yearbook. Mr. Kileen not only supervised our two last deadlines, he also was faced with the decision of next year's editorship and the many contracts and agreements necessary for the organization of next year's book.

Thank you also students of Carson High School for starring in the 1977 CARNETA.

Kevin
To a great to you hope this see you this summer and next year.
Love you
Cindy

Kevin,

I hope you had fun this year even though we didn't know each other that soon.
I hope we will become closer & we will stay that way.
I will try to get a little taller so you won't have to bend down so much. I hope you will remember to call me once in awhile!!!

Stay the same please!!!

don't get any taller just stay the way you are!!!
